WEATEHR.

U. S. Department of Agriculture—Weather Bureau.

Toledo, O., 8 a. m., Feb 13.'92.

The local forecast for to-day is warmer with snow flurries. For Sunday, warmer with snow or rain.

The storm reported yesterday in the St. Lawrence is now over Nova Scotia, creating dangerous gales in the Canadian maritime provinces. A cold wave followed this storm closely and would have been severe at this point were it not for another storm which is closely following with higher temperature in its front. The temperature in the vicinity of Parry Sound fell to 30 degrees below zero this morning.

The second "low" or storm center is now central over Nebraska and Iowa with its eastern limit near Toledo. It is moving southeasterly, but will probably change on Sunday to the northwest and create rain or snow, more likely the former in the lake region, and followed by snow flurries and colder weather Monday night. North of the 40th parallel outside of the influence of the storm, the temperature continues low, but it is rising south of it, with clear weather. The lowest temperature here in the United States to-day is 12 degrees below at Sault St. Marie, Mich.; 24 degrees colder than at Toledo at the same hour. The highest in Toledo yesterday was 18 degrees. Total snowfall amounted to a trace.

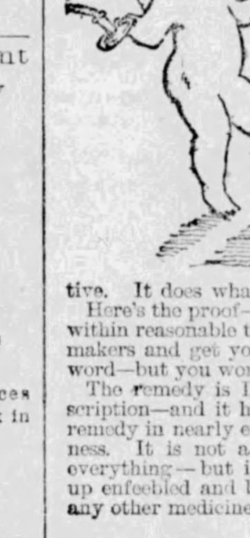
Female counterfeiter in Canada.
Salvation Army soldiers capture London.



"It makes me tired! People ask me—is marriage a failure? Of course 't'aint; s'pose I don't know my biz—what am I here for?" If the women only keep healthy they keep in good spirits and cupid is in demand. Let every enfeebled woman know this—there's a remedy that'll cure her, the proof's positive. It does what is promised.

Here's the proof—if it doesn't do you good within reasonable time, report the fact to its makers and get your money back without a word—but you won't do it!

The remedy is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—and it has proved itself the right remedy in nearly every case of female weakness. It is not a miracle. It won't cure everything—but it has done more to build up enfeebled and broken-down women than any other medicine known.

LONDON CAPTURED

A Great City in the Hands of an Army.

Salvationists Move on the World's Metropolis.

Five Thousand Workingmen in Line,

And Twenty Thousand More in Reserve.

Gaudy Banners and Cheering Hundreds Greet General Booth on His Return to the Great City After Months of Hard Work.

London, Feb. 13.—The monster procession of the Salvation army to-day, upon the occasion of the triumphal entry into London of General Booth, was by far the greatest effort ever made by the Salvationists to attract attention to their work.

General Booth, who, after his exciting day at Southampton, spent the night at Portsmouth, travelled to London this morning, where there was a great demonstration at Victoria station.

The general made a short stay at the Grosvenor hotel, adjoining the depot and from thence a procession was formed marching by way of Grosvenor place to Hyde Park corner, thence into the park itself.

In this parade there were fully 5,000 Salvation lads and lasses in line, the number being limited to 5,000 in order that the procession should not encumber the streets for too long a time; but there were fully 20,000 other Salvationists in the throngs which witnessed the show.

The falling-in of the forces in Hyde Park presented really striking pictures. There were 14 battalions of male and female Salvationists dressed in their winter regalia (plain clothes), relieved by their red-encircled caps and red-adorned bonnets. Then Staff-Captain Cox and a troupe of men from a number of heavily laden vans dispensed brightness, that is to say, they distributed heavy poles and banners which were raised amid cheers and formed one of the great features of the procession, and to use the expression of the Salvationists, they converted the huge cavalade into a living epistle to be read and known to all men.

Twenty-one of these banners were displayed, each between two huge poles and represented various interesting incidents in the general's travels. They had been specially painted for the occasion by Salvationist artists and represented such scenes as: The general's departure from Southhampton; the general addressing the exhibition building in Melbourne; the general on the African gold fields; the general conversing with the premier of South Africa; the general discussing the affairs of China with the wealthiest Chinese merchant in Australia; the general in an illuminated procession in India and other scenes.

In addition there were other large banners in the procession, about sixty in all, giving other particulars of the general's travels, in print, and otherwise, many of them bearing an additional line, saying: "How about our reception at the great white throne?"

In a word, everything that paint, ink and canvas could do to attract attention was done by the Salvation army to-day. But these banners were supplemented by still more attractive features.

There were four thousand five hundred red, yellow, blue and white pennants in the procession, so that it looked, from the housetops, like an enormous many-colored serpent winding its way through the streets.

DIED FROM FRIGHT.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 13.—Caroline J. Gardner, 15 years of age, who resided with her mother at Federal street on the Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis railroad, died yesterday from fright caused by Thomas and James Skidmore, father and son, who, it is believed, on last Saturday evening attempted to kidnap the young lady for immoral purposes.

THEY LYNCHED HIM.

Roanoke, Va., Feb. 13.—Early this morning a mob of about 150 persons took Wm. Lavender, the negro who was confined in the police station here for an attempted assault on Alice Perry, a white girl, and hanged him to a tree. Lavender confessed before he was hanged.

WHITE SLAVES IN OHIO.

An Aggravated Case of Cruelty in Cleveland.

Foreign Contract Labor in Its Worst Form is Thriving in the Great State of Ohio.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 13.—John Vidral, a Slav, was arrested this morning on the charge of cruelty to minors, and thereby was revealed a case of contract labor slavery. The warrant was issued at the instance of Peter Miskush.

The boy said that nine months ago Vidral bought him of his father in the old country, promising to pay him sixteen dollars a year. He was brought to Cleveland, and with several other boys, was taken to 505 Broadway. They were made to sleep on the floor in dirt and filth, and were given two meals a day of black bread and coffee.

Early every morning they were started out with a load of tinware. If they did not bring back enough money, he said Vidral beat them with a strap. Since January 19 Peter has been in charge of Paul Seelig, of 30 Cumberland street, who discovered the lad's condition and took him home with him.

When arrested Vidral was found sleeping in his tin shop with nine others. Before Justice Poe to-day Vidral pleaded guilty, and was remanded for sentence. Two boys, Paul Cosiyar and Andrew Kroley, detained as witnesses, will probably be returned to Europe. The matter will also be laid before District Attorney Brinsmade, who will probably begin a prosecution under the alien contract labor law.

HE MADE A COOL MILLION.

Wanamaker Gets Cut of His Reading Trouble.

The Postmaster General Rewarded for the Tenacity with Which He Stuck to the Stock.

New York, Feb. 13.—A World Washington special says: Postmaster General Wanamaker has profited very largely by the rise in Reading stock since Wednesday. The postmaster general's share in the increased value of the stock is understood to foot up over $1,000,000.

A prominent gentleman from Philadelphia is quoted as follows:

"The head of the postoffice department is a very lucky man. The net profit on his interest this week is more than $1,000,000. It is a big sum, but he deserves it, for he held on under very discouraging circumstances. All of his troubles a year or so ago were brought about by his heavy interest in Reading. He was in a tight place, so tight a place that he would have gone to the wall if the Drexels had not come to his assistance. They helped him to the extent of $500,000 and offered to assist him with as much more if necessary, but he managed to get along without it. His fight with Gould bothered him greatly. He has weathered the storm and turned the corner, though, at last. To be nearly exact, Mr. Wanamaker is about $1,300,000 richer than he was not long ago.

FIELD INDICTED FOR FORGERY.

New York, Feb. 13.—The grand jury returned an indictment for forgery in the second degree against Edward M. Field. It is alleged he forged the name of E. Moore, master of the ship Bolcott, to a bill of lading for 71,282 bushels of wheat. It was dated November 11, 1891.

A Female Counterfeiter in Canada.

A Novel Plan Which Could Only Have Originated in the Brain of an Ingenious Woman.

Toronto, Feb. 13.—Catherine Rhodes, a girl of 18, was arrested yesterday on a charge of uttering counterfeit money. Her plan was to cut up a number of bills and fasten them together again, minus a small portion. Of these pieces she made a new bill, making one extra out of every eight. She was remanded for trial.

PRECEDENT DON'T GO.

Columbus, Feb. 13.—It is the rule in the senate to confirm without reference an ex-senator who is nominated by the governor for a position. In the case of ex-senator Geyser, of Fulton, this rule was fearfully mangled. He was nominated as a trustee of the Toledo asylum. Not only was his name referred, but the committee failed to report it back and reported back that of Mr. Park Foster, of Lorain, in his stead. Mr. Geyser was a Foraker man.

OHIO BEE KEEPERS.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 13.—The Ohio Bee Keepers elected the following officers: S. R. Morris, Bloomingburg, was elected president; C. F. Smith, Cincinnati, vice-president, and Miss Berna Bennett, Bedford, secretary and treasurer. Washington C. H. will be the next place of meeting.

Springfield, O., Feb. 13.—C. F. Moore has been arrested, charged with forgery.

W. I. SQUIRE AT THE HEAD

The Republican League of Clubs Elects Its Officers.

Toasts at the Banquet Last Night.

The National Lights Did Not Put In an Appearance and There Was Much Disappointment Shown.

Columbus, O., Feb. 13.—The fifth annual meeting of the Ohio League of Republican clubs was a disappointment in many respects. Chauncey M. Depew did not put in an appearance to spring the anti-Harrison bomb, and Chairman Clarkson, who had been depended upon to abuse the administration, also failed to appear.

At this point it is interesting to note that Blaine's withdrawal has silenced Depew, and the tender of a cabinet place has fixed Clarkson all right and made it possible for the federal officers to score another victory over Ohio working republicans.

The election of officers resulted in again placing W. I. Squire at the head of the clubs, regardless of the fact that his character was assailed by his Toledo enemies. The election resulted as follows:

At the afternoon session the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—W. I. Squire, of Toledo.

First vice-president—D. I. Sleeper, of Athens.

Second vice-president—Charles Chase, of Columbus.

Third vice-president—Hon. George H. Jackson, of Cincinnati.

Fourth vice-president—John J. Sullivan, of Trumbull.

Secretary—W. Z. McDonald, of Columbus.

Treasurer—W. E. Sefton, of Canton.

W. E. Brundy, of Cincinnati, and Thomas McSheekey, of Fremont, were made delegates at large to the national convention of republican clubs. The alternates are James K. Nighton, of Vinton, and Prof. W. S. Scarbrough, of Xenia.

At the banquet ex-Gov. Foraker was toastmaster. Gov. McKinley responded to "Ohio," and others spoke as follows: Charles F. Leach, "The Young Man in Politics;" Allen Carnes, "Honest Money;" C. M. Huling, "Political Crimes;" John P. Green, "Ohio Legislature;" Charles E. Hand, "An Honest Ballot;" A. W. Shaeffer, "A Political South;" W. D. Woodmansu, "The Ohio Republican League;" Charles Cottrell, "American Tin;" S. W. Bolles, "The American Newspaper;" Congressman Allen of Michigan, "The Campaign of 1892;" J. L. Locke, "The Club in Politics;" J. H. Rabbitt, "The Mistakes of Democracy;" J. Slote Fassett, "Tammany and the Tiger;" Thomas McSheeby, "Ireland Under Free Trade."

The delegates and alternates to the national convention as reported by districts are:

1—B. S. Wydman, D. D. Woodmansee.
2—R. W. Lillard, J. W. Strehli.
3—C. B. Brown, W. S. Dillentosh.

DOINGS IN FINDLAY.

School Book War on a Small Scale.

People Pleased at the Prospect of the Passage of the Public Building Bill.

Findlay, Feb. 13.—(Special)—A small-sized school book war is on here. The school board wanted to discard Wentworth's Arithmetic and use White's. A suit has been filed to enjoin the school board from taking such action and will be warmly contested.

Brought Home.

The remains of Mrs. Jennie Humphrey were brought here from Cleveland yesterday for interment in the Van Horn cemetery. She formerly resided here. Her maiden name was Miss Jennie Brown.

Visiting Masons.

About thirty members of the Masonic fraternity of the city went to Carey last evening to attend a Masonic banquet, in conjuction with a large number of brethren from surrounding towns.

Encouraging Report.

Word was received here yesterday from Congressman Hare to the effect that the Findlay public building bill was progressing. The first stone is turned in favor of it. The sub-committee reported favorably on the measure and it will be among the first to be acted upon. Congressman Hare is using his utmost endeavors for the success of the bill.

THE RUSSIAN SIDE.

Paris, Feb. 13.—There is a rumor here that the Russian general Von Hafsord, who is reported to have committed suicide at the Hotel Du Louvre, was really shot by nihilists.

WILL SHUT OFF THE GAS.

Dayton People to Play a Game of Freezeout.

The Supply of Fuel to be Shut Off Monday as the First Step in a Long Lawsuit.

Dayton, O., Feb. 13.—The natural gas company that for three winters has supplied this city, has issued official notice that the flow will be shut off Monday next. The city has a contract with the company running 18 years longer for gas for domestic fuel at 10 cents per thousand cubic feet.

The company asked that this price be increased to 20 cents per thousand, and this advance was refused.

Effort to freeze out has failed thus far, and company representatives say the gas will be shut off entirely in order to bring the matter to direct issue.

This will result in hardship and suffering to hundreds of new homes that have been built for use of gas fuel only.

SNOW IN NEW YORK.

Malone, N. Y., Feb. 13.—One of the most severe snow storms this section has witnessed for several years has prevailed for the past 36 hours.

A DRUNKEN MAN'S DEED.

He Deliberately Murders His Former Employer.

Murphysboro, Ill., Feb. 13.—Last evening Louis Miller, an employe of the Murphysboro brewery, aged 19 years, shot and killed Joseph Schille, superintendent of the establishment.

Miller had been drinking heavily and, after being reprimanded, was discharged by the superintendent.

Last evening he was refused a glass of beer by a saloon-keeper. He then swore he would kill Schille, and went to the brewery for that purpose.

He met Schille in the boiler room and fired three shots at him, the balls entering Schille's head and heart. Miller fled and has not been captured.

HEMLOCK DEALERS.

Olean, N. Y., Feb. 13.—Representatives of the largest hemlock producers of western New York and Pennsylvania met in conference here yesterday and agreed upon a scale of prices to be maintained by all those present. The new scale advances prices 50 cents per thousand feet.

WANT TO GAMBLE IN GOLD

A Move to Have the Bullion Listed.

Not Enough Commodities to Speculate Upon.

Wall Street Will Oppose it at First, but the Belief is That Kennett Will be Successful in the End.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—"Our house will apply to the New York exchange 'listing committee' to list gold bullion," said Francis J. Kennett this morning. "It was thought the efforts largely of Kennett Hopkins & Co., that silver bullion was listed. When we first proposed it the idea was pooh-poohed and was opposed for a year. Silver bullion, however, was 'listed' and has been speculated in ever since, sometimes on a very large scale."

"What would be the effect of the 'listing' of gold bullion by the New York stock exchange?" he was asked.

"I think the gold would sell at a premium the instant it was listed on the New York exchange."

"What sort of a reply do you anticipate from your application to the 'listing' committee?"

"The committee will probably refuse the application. Wall street will probably pooh-pooh it as it did the first effort to list silver. But I am firmly convinced that gold bullion will be a speculative commodity on the stock exchange before the year is out, and that there will be a premium bid for it.

"If the Bland silver bill, which has been favorably reported to the house, is passed, gold will be at 130. Some people who know the concern and who are familiar with the close relation it bears to Addison Cammack, the great Wall street short seller, will unquestionably pronounce the application to list gold a new effort by Cammack to demoralize the stock market. They will call attention to the fact that the application is made by the house that gets the bulk of Cammack's commission business."

A BIG BLAZE IN FINDLAY.

An Entire Business Block Destroyed.

Half a Dozen Firms Burned Out—Much of the Contents of the Buildings Saved.

Findlay, O., Feb. 13.—(Special)—Findlay was visited by a disastrous conflagration at 2 o'clock this morning. The entire two-story frame business flat on West Front street near Main, owned by ex-Sheriff Cusac, and containing Laird's restaurant, Helman's second hand store, Hertzberg's second hand clothing store, Fred Slop's music store, Feldkircher & Karg's meat market, M. R. Smith's law office, Taylor's tailor shop, and 'Squire Arford's office, besides a number of private families, was burned out.

The building is a complete wreck, but the merchants saved the greater part of their goods.

The loss is variously estimated from $10,000 to $16,000, partially insured.

Mr. Cusac places his loss at $10,000, insured for $5,500.

'Squire Arford's wife succeeded in saving all the valuable papers in his office. He is holding court to-day in the Jones block.

The cause of the fire is a mystery, and started in the rear of Laird's restaurant. It baffled the efforts of the fire department. During the excitement the team hitched to the $2,000 hook and ladder truck wagon ran away and smashed the wagon against the court house curb.

Committed Suicide.

Anna Smith, a woman of the town, better known as Anna the Maid, who runs a saloon on Liberty street, committed suicide last night by taking rough on rats. Two physicians tried hard to save her life.

A BIG MEETING TO-NIGHT.

That is What the Base Ball People Want.

Steps to Have a Club Here Are Progressing Nicely—Much Depends Upon This Evening.

Manager Schmelz, of Columbus, has made a thorough canvass of the city in the interest of a ball club, and has met with much encouragement.

He has impressed all with whom he has talked of the feasibility of the plan, and a number of prominent business men have promised to attend the meeting at the Boody to-night.

With a good attendance to-night the club should be put on its feet, and active steps taken toward placing Toledo in a league where some money can be made in base ball.

President Williams, of the Western league, arrived in the city this afternoon, and has some information he wishes to impart to the people, and all who turn out to-night can rely on having base ball discussed from a business standpoint, and not from that of an expensive luxury.

It is the first time in the history of base ball that the affairs of a league are being conducted on a business basis, and so popular is the plan, that the National league will undoubtedly adopt the Western system next year.

It does not mean poor salaries to players, but it means on an average, a thousand dollars for six months work.

With a salary list of $12,000 the books of the old Toledo club show that a handsome profit could have been made on the investment.

People interested in having a club here should turn out to-night and learn what President Jimmy Williams has to say to them.

THE POPE'S HEALTH.

It is Again Causing Comment in Europe.

Rome, Feb. 13.—Some alarm is felt again regarding the condition of the pope. His doctors report that he is suffering from a gradual loss of strength.

His holiness is considerably affected by the probable fatal illness of Cardinals Melchers and Mermillod, for both of whom he feels the warmest attachment.

It is said that the pope has within a few days received assurances that there will be no attempt of any kind on the part of the Italian government to interfere or influence the selection of his successor.

COUNT BLUCHER DEAD.

New York, Feb. 13.—Count Ferdinand Blucher, a great grandson of the famous general, died of the grip Wednesday in this city, in destitute circumstances. Through his marriage two years ago with Miss Alma Loeb, of Brooklyn, he was disinherited by his father, and two months ago started proceedings for an annulment of the marriage, alleging that he was tricked into it. The count's wife is now in [illegible]ver.

DREADED TYPHUS.

Newburg, N. Y., Feb. 13.—A pronounced case of typhus fever has been discovered in this city among a number of Italians, the sick man having been a passenger on the steamship Masila. He has been removed to the pest house and all the occupants of the building placed in quarantine. The building is to be thoroughly fumigated and the yellow flag displayed.

CONTRADICTORY STATEMENTS.

New York, Feb. 13.—Miss Meeker, who was said by Carl Peterson, of Chicago, to be his fiancee, and to have known that Helen Potts, the young woman murdered by Carlisle Harris, used morphine for her complexion, says she does not know Peterson, and that she never knew Miss Potts to use morphine.

COTTON MILL BURNED.

Boston, Feb. 13.—Bishop's cotton mills in South Boston were damaged by fire last evening. The loss is estimated as follows: On buildings, owned by Robert Bishop, $15,000; on 3,000 bales of cotton and a stock of waste, hemp rope, etc., $25,000; fully insured.

PLEADING FOR HOME RULE

Utah Makes a Statement of Her Case in Washington.

Unfit Federal Officials Causing Trouble.

The Senate Committee on Territories Engaged on a Very Interesting Piece of Business.

Washington, Feb. 13.—A petition praying that amnesty be granted members of the Mormon church convicted for practicing pologamy, in violation of the Edmunds act has been sent to the president. It is signed by Gov. Thomas; the president and members of the Utah commission, judges of the territorial courts and other federal officials.

This piece of news became public today at a meeting of the senate committee on territories to hear argument in favor of Senator Faulkner's bill providing local self government for Utah.

The hearing was very interesting and spicy by reason of the sensational charges made against the Utah commission, and the governor of the territory, A. L. Thomas.

The first speaker, C. C. Richards, a prominent young lawyer of Salt Lake City, was very positive in his statements concerning the alleged unfitness of the federal officials in Utah for administering the laws of the territory.

He gave comparative figures to show that Utah had a larger population than several of the new states and cited this as a reason why the territory was entitled to statehood. But all the people of the territory asked, he said, was local self government.

Lack of responsibility in the officers of the government, he contended, had caused many wrongs. The federal officials were not strong enougharfrfrfrfarfararr were not responsible to the people of the territory and because of this they did not perform their duties fairly and honestly, having no restraining influence to bear on them. Lack of responsibility had been the means, he said, of inducing unscrupulous politicians and financiers to obtain improper and almost absolute control of the powers of the executive pertaining to legislative matters.

Gov. Thomas was referred to as a petty tyrant, who had an absolute power of veto.

Mr. Richards cited an alleged instance where the governor was asked how he would act on a certain legislative measure, and had informed his questioner that a certain gentleman was considering the question for him.

"I am satisfied," said Mr. Richards, in reference to the Utah commission, "that the presence of the commission in Utah during the past ten years has done more towards prejudicing the people of the United States against the people of the territory of Utah and delaying the solution of the unfortunate condition of affairs that has existed in that territory than all other things combined.

"The commission has lost no opportunity to speak falsely of the people of the territory. It has lost no opportunity of irritating them and making them feel that the officers appointed by the government of the United States were their enemies rather than their friends.

"It has lost no opportunity of misconstruing the motives of the people, and of accusing the innocent with the guilty; of making the people of the country believe the condition of things in the territory to be much worse than it ever has been and of keeping up such an unwarrantable and profitable agitation of the situation that congress should feel justified in not continuing them in office."

READY FOR AN OUTBREAK.

Tennessee Miners Are Again at War.

They Fire on the Pickets and Are Rewarded by a Volley From the Gatling Gun.

Knoxville, Tenn., Feb. 13.—A number of drunken men, supposed to be miners, fired upon the pickets of the state troops at the Coal Creek convict camp about 10 o'clock Thursday night.

The Gatling gun was turned on then and two of them were wounded.

Commander Anderson has telegraphed to Gen. Carnes, at Memphis, for more ammunition and arms.

Crowds of men are seen among the hills in and around Coal Creek and the operator there predicts another conflict soon.

BLOCKED BY SNOW.

Fonda, N. Y., Feb. 13.—The worst snow storm of the season has been raging in the Mohawk valley since Thursday night. Huge snow drifts block country roads and snow plows are being run on the West Shore and Central roads.

A HORRIBLE DISCOVERY

Made by a Bee Carrier Last Night.

John and Bridget Malloy Found Dead

In Their Own Home on Vance Street—Mrs. Malloy Killed by Her Jealous Husband—Details of the Deplorable Affair.

Insanity, jealousy, a suit for divorce, and finally murder and suicide is the story in brief of the troubles of John and Bridget Malloy, an aged couple living on Vance street, near Lenk, opposite the city park.

The circumstances of the double crime that makes the climax for this terrible tragedy are very strange, and peculiarly horrible, and when discovered the victims had been lying in their blood for 24 hours at least, and perhaps a longer time.

Little Jimmy Kelly, who carries the Bee, delivered a paper, as has been his custom, at the Malloy house last Thursday evening. The house was dark and as no one seemed to be about he opened the kitchen door and carelessly tossed the paper on a table standing near by. The evening was dark, and as the boy could see nothing amiss, he little dreamed of the awful crime that had been enacted in that room but a short time before, and he did not know that two dead bodies were lying on the floor before him.

But last evening when he delivered the paper the house was still dark, and he noticed that the Bee of the evening before was still lying on the table where he had placed it. This appeared strange, and as he pushed the door farther open he was horrified to see the body of Mrs. Malloy lying on the floor in a pool of blood.

Without waiting to investigate further he immediately reported his discovery to Patrolman Riley, who was on Lenk street, and the two returned to the house. The officer lighted a match and then they saw Mr. Malloy lying beside his wife and the floor covered with an immense pool of clotted blood.

Officer Riley at once telephoned the matter to headquarters, and also notified the coroner.

When discovered Mrs. Malloy was lying on her left side with her arm extended, and her husband lay on his face and stretched across her arm.

When the coroner arrived the bodies were examined, and it was found that Mrs. Malloy had been shot in the face, and the bullet had passed out behind her right ear.

Two bullet wounds were discovered in Malloy's head, one in the temple and one over the right ear, and under his body was found the weapon that had performed the deadly work. It was a new Hopkins & Allen double action, 38 calibre, revolver, and three chambers were empty.

From the position of the bodies Mrs. Malloy had evidently died without a struggle, but Mr. Malloy had writhed somewhat after falling to the floor.

Both were poorly dressed, but in Malloy's pocket was $56 in gold, silver and bills.

Coroner Beckwith's examination made it plain that the man and woman had been dead over 24 hours, and the killing was probably done before dark on Thursday, as on the table were two lamps newly filled but not lighted, and about the stove were evidences of a meal in course of preparation. Mrs. Malloy was probably just getting supper when her husband attacked her.

Insanity the Cause.

The only cause to which Malloy's mad deed is attributed is that he was insane. Mr. and Mrs. Malloy were both about 75 years old, and had been married 52 years. Malloy had been a contractor and builder, and later a drayman. He was shrewd and thrifty, and accumulated some property, so that he was able to retire from business over 12 years ago, and since that time he has had no occupation. He owned three houses adjoining the one in which he lived, and also owned considerable other property that brought him a good income.

Of late years, however, he has been a hard drinker and developed a very mean temper. He was continually abusing his wife and accusing her of being unfaithful to him. Besides this he had frequent quarrels with his neighbors, and made it so unpleasant for those who came near him that his friends finally deserted him and he was left severely alone.

On the other hand Mrs. Malloy was of a kind and motherly disposition, and refused to leave her husband, notwithstanding his abuse. She was also a devout member of Father Hannin's congregation and attended church regularly.

Nearly a year ago it became plain that Malloy was dangerously insane, and he was sent to the asylum. He was detained there but a short time, however, and was returned to his home.

His abuse of his wife continued, and on numerous occasions he threatened to shoot her and once exhibited a revolver with which he said he would kill her, but the weapon was taken away from him by a neighbor.

Applied for Divorce.

This continued until last Tuesday, when Mrs. Malloy made an application, in Judge Harmon's court, for divorce and an injunction restraining her husband from disposing of his property. The injunction was granted, and the hearing was soon to be heard on the petition for divorce.

This action on the part of his wife greatly enraged Malloy, and probably was the cause of his rash deed.

The last seen of the dead people was on Thursday morning, when Malloy was in Julius Strohhaecker's grocery and saloon on the corner of Vance street and Collingwood avenue. He then appeared sober and gave no intimation of what he was about to do.

Mr. and Mrs. Malloy had no children, and their only living relative is Daniel Seward, who is a nephew of Mrs. Malloy and is employed as guard at the workhouse.

Mr. Seward has taken charge of the bodies and they were laid out by Undertaker Couldwell. The funeral will probably be held to-morrow, and the remains will be interred at Calvary cemetery.

Coroner Beckwith will hold his inquest Monday morning.

The house where the tragedy occurred presented a sad scene this morning. Mrs. Malloy was a general favorite with her neighbors and all who knew her, and many of them visited the house to mourn over her and take a last look at her face. But little sympathy was expressed for Mr. Malloy.

DAMAGE SUIT TO FOLLOW.

Weatherby & Stevens Acquitted in Court.

They Will Ask for One Hundred Thousand Dollars Damages From Claflin & Co.

Cincinnati, Feb. 13.—In the suit of H. B. Claflin & Co., of New York against Weatherby and Stevens in Squire Gaus' court, a verdict of not guilty was rendered this morning and the defendants were dismissed.

Mr. Campbell, attorney for Weatherby and Stevens stated this morning that suit for $100,000 damages would be brought against Claflin & Co.

THE LAWYERS TALKING.

Arguments Being Heard in the Case Against Father Kolasinski.

Father Kolasinski concluded his statement in police court yesterday afternoon, and this ended the introduction of evidence in the case. The trial was then continued until this afternoon, and the arguments are now being heard.

THE HARDY ESTATE.

Meeting of Heirs This Morning—Col. Everett will Continue as Administrator.

The heirs to the Hardy estate, the will in which was recently set aside, met in consultation in the office of Swayne, Swayne & Hayes, this morning, and an amicable settlement was arrived at.

Col. C. W. Everett will continue as administrator of the estate.

EX-PRESIDENT CLEVELAND.

His Visit to Toledo Not Regarded Favorably by Mr. Bacon.

The report that ex-President Cleveland was to spend a couple of days in Toledo is unfounded.

"There is nothing in it," said Mr. Bacon this morning. "He has been asked to visit Toledo, but the chances of his coming are exceedingly slim."

At a special meeting of the Ann Arbor council, the freedom of the city was voted to ex-President Cleveland on the occasion of his visit on the 22d.

SENSIBLE SUGGESTION.

The Gas Committee Should Confer With the Opposition.

Mr. F. T. Lane, speaking with a Bee this morning on the gas situation, said he, as a member of the investigating committee, was in favor of hearing both sides, and he was of the opinion it would be wise to have a conference with the gentlemen who first requested the appointment of the committee.

Mr. Burdick agreed with this view, but thought it would be time enough when the committee returned from the field.

PERSONAL INJURY SUIT.

Margaret Edler Files a Claim Against the Robison Company.

In common pleas court to-day Margaret Edler sued the Toledo Electric Street Railway company to recover $10,000 damages for personal injury. In her petition the plaintiff alleges that she boarded the car at the junction of Cherry street and Canton avenue, and that before she was entirely upon the platform the conductor caused the car to be suddenly started and she was thrown to the ground and in falling broke her arm.

SHAEFER AND SHAW.

An Effort to be Made to Have Them Visit Toledo.

The billiard wizard, Shaefer, and Lew Shaw, are making a tour of the large cities of the country playing exhibition games, and are meeting with great success. They have just closed a successful engagement in Cleveland, and Toledo billiard players are getting their heads together to see if the two men can be engaged to come to this city. Shaefer has played in Toledo only once, and that in the gymnasium in the old Hall block, and doubtless these two men, who perform such wonderful work with the ivories, would attract a large audience in this city.

CRESSWELL ACQUITTED

Of a Charge of Embezzement—His Pal Refused to Testify Against Him.

Readers of the Bee will remember that a man named Harry Cresswell was arrested in Toledo for being implicated in the famous embezzlement from the Houtzdale bank, in Pennsylvania. Word has been received here that Cresswell was acquitted at his trial on Wednesday for lack of evidence against him. W. B. Hamilton, who is serving a term in the Western penitentiary on the same charge, was taken to the Clearfield court as a witness against Cresswell, but refused to give any evidence against him, and in consequence Cresswell was released and is now at his home at Petersburg.

CAUGHT AT LAST.

Young Man Arrested for a Robbery Committed One Year Ago.

A young man named Charles Farrow was arrested yesterday by Detectives Manly and Carew for a robbery committed over one year ago. On January 15 Farrow, in company with W. H. Doty, a traveling man, were "doing the town" together, and that night Farrow took Doty to his mother's house on Walnut street near Water, where they went to bed. Early in the morning Doty awoke to find Farrow gone and also his own watch, chain, a diamond stud and some money.

Nothing was afterward heard of Farrow until yesterday when he was arrested.

THE O. Y. C.'S.

With the Toledo Harmonics, Will Entertain Next Wednesday Night.

Arrangements are completed for the annual entertainment under the auspices of the Ohio Yacht club Wednesday evening next. The attraction will be the Toledo Harmonic society, consisting of soloists and a chorus of one hundred voices. They will give Prof. George Whiting's cantata "Dream Pictures," which was written for a club of Boston artists and made famous by them. As a chief attraction the Harmonics have secured Miss Maud Powell, the distinguished violinist, whose wonderful playing was so much admired when she was here with Gilmore. 'Twill be a big time.

THE PLASTERERS' MEETING.

It Was Well Attended and Will Have Good Results.

The plasterers held a very successful open meeting at their hall last evening. A great many ex-members and non-union men were in attendance and listened to the arguments presented to them by the members of the union and committee from the Building and Trades council. A number of them signified their intention to tender their application next meeting, when the union will consider the advisibility of reducing their initiation fee, as some of the outsiders claim $15 too much for this season of the year.

The Brass Workers.

The brass workers met for a sociable time last evening, expecting a call from their general secretary, McGlogan, but urgent business detained him elsewhere. They adjourned to meet on call from president.

GOOD FOR TOLEDO.

The Best There Is Going to Come Our Way.

The Bee is happy to inform its readers that there is strong probability that the New York Symphony Orchestra, under Walter Damrosch, will be here about May 21. Mr. Hickok and a number of other leading musical people are interested in the matter and are receiving good encouragement. Speed the enterprise.

CIRCUIT COURT OPINIONS

Handed Down at G. A. R. Hall This Morning.

The circuit court handed down opinions in the following cases this morning:

Lake Shore Railroad company against Frazner, reversed.

Lake Shore Railroad company against Kalkage, sustained. It was an action to recover for personal injury. The court held that the company should have blocked its switches.

Thomas against Thomas, reversed. Error in charge of the court.

Gunn against Acklin, affirmed.

BACK FROM LEXINGTON.

Geo. H. Ketcham Considers the Recent Horse Sale One of the Greatest on Record.

Mr. Geo. H. Ketcham returned from the Lexington horse sale this morning. His purchases, Red Queen, Lizzie Champ and Morea, are expected to arrive here to-day.

"There were about 800 horses sold altogether, bringing in about $500,000," Mr. Ketcham said to a Bee to-day. "One day about 80 horses were sold at $1,000 or over. This is said to be one of the greatest horse sales on record."

The Bee has already referred to the purchase of Lizzie Champ and Morea. Red Queen, Mr. Ketcham's last purchase, is out of Red Wilkes, and has a record of 2:27 3-4. She is said to be a very handsome animal.

FLATTERING PROSPECTS

In High-Class Entertainment Lines for Another Season.

A number of our live citizens have under consideration a splendid entertainment project for next season. A "Citizen's Entertainment Course," to be managed by a dozen able and leading ladies and gentlemen who will bring to Toledo the very finest musical and dramatic talent to be had in the country. They feel confident that by guarantees which they will have nerve enough and means enough to offer, they can secure attractions that know not Toledo in their calculations, and that the appreciation of the public will be sufficient to warrant them in their venture. "But where is a house for them?" On the corner of Adams and St. Clair the new National Union building is to be erected in the spring, and on the ground floor of this will be an auditorium that will comfortably seat 1,200 or 2,000, with a stage for 200 performers. The Bee is requested not to mention names just now, but the public-spirited men and women who have the project in hand are sure to make a go of it.

DEEPEN THE CHANNEL.

An Instance of Where Damage from the Present Condition Resulted.

Toledo should continue to bestir itself in the matter of deepening the harbor. Almost daily something is brought to light that demonstrates the necessity for action. For instance, this morning a gentleman talking to a Bee said: "Last season the Imperial Milling company of Duluth made Toledo, on account of its excellent railroad facilities, a distributing point. D. B. Strickler was placed here in charge of the business, and large quantities of flour was handled at this point by the company. However, on one trip one of the company's boats stuck in the mud in the river and her load had to be transferred at a great loss of time and money. This discouraged the company and now they contemplate removing their distributing station to Sandusky or Cleveland, the coming season. It is such cases as this that, happening one by one, will before long rob Toledo of its lake business, if something is not done, and done immediately."

THE JURY DISAGREE

In the Case of Koontz Against Dewey, Rodgers & Co.

The jury in the case of Samuel Koontz, of Walkerton, Ind., against Dewey, Rodgers & Co., wholesale shoe dealers of Toledo, failed to agree and Judge Pugsley discharged the twelve last night.

The suit is an action to recover $12,000 for property alleged to have been sold under attachment by the defendants.

The plaintiff in the suit claims that on September 21, 1886, he owned a general stock of goods at Walkerton, Ind., which he had shortly before purchased of Henry A. Woodworth.

He alleges that Dewey Rodgers & Co. had a claim against Henry A. Woodworth amounting to $1,600, and that they attached the stock of goods, then in possession of the plaintiff, Koontz, by proceedings in the United States circuit court at Indianapolis. He states that on a claim of $1,600, the defendants attached and sold $12,000 worth of goods, and that the proceeds of the sale were divided among themselves and the creditors whose claims had been filed in the meantime, as provided by law in Indiana. Koontz sought to recover the value of the goods thus disposed of, with interest from time of sale.

LOCAL RAILROADS

Are Short of Cars—Coal Rates for Lake Trade—Other Matters.

The Ohio Coal Traffic association at its recent meeting agreed to continue the same rates for the lake trade as last year.

Sixty-five mechanics in the Pennsylvania railroad company's shops at Indianapolis are on a strike because the piece system has been introduced. The trouble will be compromised.

The exceptions to the master's report in the distribution of the $40,000 forfeited by the joint purchasers of the C., J. & M., will be argued before Judge Ricks in Cleveland, February 22.

G. J. Clark, special agent C., H. & D. railroad, returned from Harriman, Tenn., this morning, where he has been arranging for excursions to the big land sales which will take place in April.

Local railroads are all short of cars. The heavy movement of corn for export is one reason. The railroads will be cramped for cars until navigation opens up. The Lake Shore is in bad shape in this matter of cars, and the C., H. & D., one of the best equipped roads in Ohio, is if anything in harder lines.

CHARITY CONCERT,

To Be Given at the Residence of Mrs. F. B. Shoemaker.

The date for the charity concert under the direction of Mr. Elvin Singer, to be given at the residence of Mrs. F. B. Shoemaker is definitely set for February 22, Washington's birthday. The music lovers of society are anticipating the entertainment with much pleasure, as the finest artists of the city will appear. Rarely are so many musical gems given at one concert, as the following carefully prepared program shows:

Part I.

Quartet from "Bohemian Girl," Balfe—Thaddeus, Mr. Elvin Singer; Devilshoof, Mr. Charles Wuerfel; Arline, Miss Hattie Gasser; Queen, Miss Mary Chase.

Violin solo, "Aris Bohemiens," Leonard—May Barden Colburn.

Soprano solo, Bird Song, from "Robin Hood," de Koven—Miss Grace Reals.

Piano solo, march in D flat, op. 39, Hollender—Miss Nellie Cook.

Tenor Solo, Romance from "Dorothy," Cellier—Mr. Elvin Singer.

Part II.

Violin solo, "Polonaise," Allen—May Barden Colburn.

Soprano solo, "Let Me Love Thee," Ardini—Miss Grace Reals.

Tenor solo, Liebe-lied, from "Die Walkuere," Wagner—Mr. Elvin Singer.

Piano solo, "Valse de Juliette," Gounod—Miss Nellie Cook.

Quartet from "Rigoletto," Verdi—Duke of Mantua, Mr. Elvin Singer; Rigoletto, Mr. F. R. Williams; Golda, Miss Grace Reals; Maddalena, Mrs. F. R. Williams.

THE PETITION FILED

On the Gas Refunding Bond Proposition.

Restraining Order Sought to Prevent Issue—The Grounds Upon Which the Document is Based.

The natural gas refunding bonds will not be issued at least until after a legal scrimmage in common pleas court.

This afternoon the petition was filed in the common pleas court asking for a restraining order to prevent the city officials from signing and issuing the bonds recently authorized.

The application was made by Attorneys Kinney & Newton and Baker, Smith & Baker, for the following plaintiffs, who, it will be seen, are representative citizens of Toledo: John T. Newton, James Secor, Mathew Shoemaker, Wm. Peter, Thomas S. Merrill, Abram W. Colton, John Cray, Geo. H. Ketcham, Wm. Maher, Wm. J. Colburn, Fitch Dewey, Mars Nearing, Wm. Baker, Chas. L. Reynolds, Mark V. Barbour, John N. Drummond, Welcome O. Parker, S. C. Schenck, Anna C. Mott, Albert T. Colburn, Leander S. Baumgardner, Edward O. Brown, Joseph H. Ainsworth, Justice S. Bowman, Lawrence Newman, Wm. H. H. Smith, George G. Hadley, Thos. C. Rowland, J. G. Mitchell, Edward Mitchell, John E. Bailey, Wm. Robertson, Edwin Reed, E. C. Shaw & Co., John B. Ketcham, 2d, Robert Cummings, Wm. J. Clarke, Frank E. Trowbridge, James S. Rodgers, Wm. H. McLyman, Reuben R. Mitchell, Lytle & Weeman, James Blass, Wm. Clark, Samuel Z. Foster, Melvin R. Palmer, Wm. T. Carrington, Oliver Rogers and others.

The petition praying for the injunction states that the ordinance provides for the issue of the bonds to extend the payment of a certain indebtedness which the city is unable to pay. The plaintiffs avre that there is no existing valid or legal indebtedness of the city incurred in the piping of the streets of Toledo; that the board of natural gas trustees have assumed to create on indebtedness for that propose aggregating more than $346,000; that the trustees, commencing in July, 1891, assumed to inter into certain contracts in the name of the city for piping Toledo; that by the terms of these contracts the contractors were to be paid 75 per cent. from the income of the same line thus contracted for, and in case this fund would not pay out, certificates of indebtedness should be issued for the amount.

It further avers that at the time the contracts were entered into, there was no money in the natural gas fund, and that the auditor did not certify that the money required for the contracts was in the treasury of the city of Toledo.

Further that there was no advertisement in the papers for proposals for bids.

That during the summer of 1891 certain citizens of Toledo advanced money to the trustees to be used in laying pipe, which was to be repaid to them by crediting to them 50 per cent. of their monthly gas bills, and it is now claimed there is due on this account $51,000.

That there is an indebtedness of $33,000 for material furnished and labor performed for which the city auditor never did or has not certified that there was any money in the city treasury to the credit of the gas fund.

That the issue and sale of these bonds would be an abuse of the corporate powers, and would work a lasting and irreparable injury to the taxpayers of Toledo.

IT IS A GO.

The Toledo Bridge Company Elect Officers,

And Will Assume Control of the Smith Bridge Works on the First of March.

The stockholders of the Toledo Bridge company met at the law office of E. W. Tolerton this afternoon at 3 o'clock, and elected the following directors: James H. Huston, G. P. Waldorf, E. B. Smith, E. W. Tolerton, F. Zwilling.

The following officers were then elected: James H. Huston, president and general manager; G. P. Waldorf, vice-president; E. P. Smith, secretary; F. Zwilling, superintendent of shops.

Mr. Zwilling is at present foreman at the Smith Bridge Works shops.

The purchase of the Smith plant will be dissussed, and some definite arrangements made. The option on the plant is in force until March 1st, when the new company will take possession.

FIVE ENGINE HOUSES

Desired by the Fire Commissioners,

And They Will Call on the Ways and Means Committee on Monday Night to Get Approval.

The fire commissioners have long realized the want of more protection and better facilities to fight fire. The splendid work accomplished by the present department, handicapped as it has been by its need of reinforcements has been appreciated by the public and especially those who has been so unfortunate as to experience a fire.

The fire commissioners have prepared a petition which will be presented to the ways and means committee on next Monday evening requesting that a bill to the legislature be indorsed by the council, providing for the issue of $100,00 worth of bonds, to supply means of erecting and equipping five fire engine houses in Toledo.

A SHERMAN MONUMENT.

St. Louis, Feb. 13.—The committee of the society of the Army of the Tennessee, which has in charge the collection of a fund for the erection in Washington of a statue to the memory of Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman, has issued an appeal to old soldiers.

Straining and racking your lungs and throat with a rasping cough, is but poor policy. Rather cure yourself with Dr. D. Jayne's Expectorant, an excellent remedy for asthma and bronchitis.

Offices in the Bee Buildings have all improvements of the day. If you contemplate a change look them over.

COLONIZATION A FAILURE.

Berlin, Feb. 13.—Advices from German New Guinea leave no doubt that the attempt at colonization in that quarter is a complete failure. The death rate of the colonists is high, and most of the officials sent out there have have died of one disease or another contracted with the climate.

I prescribe Simmons Liver Regulator, and it deserves all the praise it receives.—Dr. D. W. Atkinson, Siloam Springs, Ark.

The place to find pleasant and agreeable offices, is in the Bee building. Every convenience known, rapid passenger elevator, steel ceilings, fire proof vaults, Smead system of heat and ventilation, and perfect light in every room.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

In common pleas court to-day the First National bank of Bryan, O., took judgment against The Briggs Manufacturing company, on a cognovit note in the sum of $5,908.24.

Mrs. George Hook, Mrs. E. M. Irving, and Messrs. J. and T. Emerson are on a program for an evening of recitation and song at the Fifth Presbyterian church next Wednesday evening, which will be an enjoyable occasion.

Mr. J. J. Freeman has received a letter from a man in Cincinnati, enclosing a pawn check for the bicycle stolen this week, and stating he can secure the wheel by sending the necessary stuff to settle with th pawnbroker.

First ward republicans met last night and appointed half the members of the party to serve on committees to carry the ward in the spring. Reynold Voit is president, R. M. Parke, vice president, and Dave McAleese, secretary.

President Squire is certainly to be congratulated on his re-election. The men who made such a vicious fight on him found that a hustler and a conscientious worker is appreciated by those who are in a position to appreciate effective service.—This morning's Columbus Journal.

Toledo will soon have a German council of the Order of Chosen Friends, which will be organized in a few days by Deputy Supreme Counselor Sherman. The order is growing larger every day throughout the country. There is also some talk about organizing a women's council, there being several in the larger cities which are successful.

IN TRADING CIRCLES

Both at Our Home and Abroad.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Current for Produce and Other Articles.

There is quite a change in English markets for the better. Part of it is due to cold weather on the Island, and part to reports of damage to French crops. While these markets are not quoted as active, the prices are equal to 1 1-2 to 2d advance on red winter wheat. The wheat market on this side would very naturally respond to this upward turn were they not held down by the power of the sellers of puts and calls. It is an unfair element in the deal.

New York closed at 12 o'clock. February wheat gained 1 1-4c; May, 5-8c. February corn steady, May 1-4c lower. February oats unchanged.

Chicago closes at 87 3-4c for February wheat and 91 1-4c asked for May. February corn, 40 3-4c; May, 42 1-8@42 1-4c.

In Toledo.—Business has been more active than yesterday and there has evidently been an increase of confidence and better tone in the markets. On the call May wheat sold at 96 to 96 1-8c. After the call at 96 to 95 7-8c, and slowly advancing to 96 1-4c at close, a gain of 5-8c. There were some sales for February at 94c, and small sales of cash wheat at that, a gain of 1-2c. The offerings of cash wheat here are light, our stock being held for May. No. 1 white at 95c. No other grades dealt in. Corn—No. 2, 41 1-2c; No. 3, 40 1-2c to 41c; No. 3 yellow at 41 1-2c. Rye—No. 2 at 83c.

TOLEDO PRICES CURRENT.

WAGES AND MORALS.

On a recent Sunday afternoon, Rev. Louis A. Banks talked to men only in Association hall, Boston, on the relation of wages to morals.

Mr. Banks had an audience entirely of men, said the Boston Herald, so he was able to treat his subject in the plainest manner. He made insufficient wages responsible for much of the drunkenness of working men and immorality of working girls, dwelling particularly upon the condition of shop girls, who were expected to eke out their meagre pay with the earnings of shame. Mr. Banks said in part:

"There is a great deal said about the dignity of labor which is nothing more than oratorical commonplace. There is no dignity about labor in itself. What is there about piling bricks on top of each other, or mixing mortar, or sewing blue denim into overalls, or trading earthen jars for nickel coin, that has about it any inherent dignity?

"It is only as there is mixed with the mortar, or builded with the bricks, the holy cement of a moral purpose; only as there is stitched into the cloth the diviner thread of hopeful love; only as the deed gathers the aroma of an aspiring human life, is it a dignified attraction. But when you make of the laborer a slave, degrade his work to a mere fight for bread, harass him by continual debt, put him in a vile tenement house that smothers all holy ambition, labor has no longer dignity; it smells rather of the dungeon and the pit.

"Reduce wages to the point where the laborer has to either remain at the shop or to take his work home and work in the night, and drive it on through Sunday as well, and you simply brutalize the workman. A man, of course, may be a scoundrel, and well fed; but, on the other hand, poor food and undue exposure to cold and heat have tremendous influence in breaking down the resistance power against temptation to evil.

"Courage is the safeguard of both truth and honesty. Break down a man's courage by overwork, bad food and poisonous air, and you have opened the way for lying, theft and a whole brood of vicious tendencies.

"Remember that poor wages mean long hours; and long hours that exhaust all the energy of the laborer mean ignorance; and ignorance, when it is finished, means immorality.

"Persevere in that course, and you reach barbarism. The road faces that way."

The "Passion Play" is to be performed by reskins at a great gathering of Christian Canadian Indians, in Kamloops, B. C., next June. Rev. Father Lacombe is organizing the meeting and it is expected that some 7,000 Christian Indians from various parts of British Columbia and many pagan reds will be in attendance. The "Passion Play" is to be but an incident of the gathering and not its main feature.

DRINKING HEALTHS.

Some Odd Rules of Etiquette in Old Holland.

We give the rule about drinking healths as it is among the Burgers, so that no mistakes may be made.

"1. Offer your friends before going to table a glass of red wine, as that is good for the digestion and is a pleasant way of welcoming them.

"2. With the first glass the host must wish his guests an appetizing meal. His friends must answer with a glass and wish the same to each other also.

"3. If the company consists of only 10 or 12 people, one can drink their health in turn, but it is useless to do it all at once, as all may not have such thirst at the same time. When you wish to drink, ask for a glass of wine of the man or maid who is serving.

"4. If the company is large and there are perhaps 30 at table, it would be useless to drink everyone's health separately, as one would then take more wine than one cares to drink. If you please you may include two, four or six in one salutation of your glass, beginning with those furthest off and then continuing, first on the right hand and then on the left.

"5. The dispute still exists as to the propriety of kissing the lady who sits next you as you drink her health, or thanking her with a kiss when she drinks yours. Still more unmannerly is it to leave your chair to kiss the young ladies who sit at a distance from you. It is not proper to kiss a lady without washing your lips, and besides it creates confusion at table.

"6. It is not well to insist upon anyone's finishing his glass each time, as that would do away with the freedom of your guests, but it is quite proper to ask the lady next you if you may fill her glass from time to time.—February Scribner.

Be Sure

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. A Boston lady, whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I had taken Hood's Sarsaparilla, knew what it was, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other. When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." MRS. ELLA A. GOFF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

IT'S A GREAT INDUCEMENT

TO BUY GOOD CLOTHING WHEN THE PRICES ARE REDUCED

BELOW THE LOW WATER-MARK

We are offering the greatest inducements now on all winter goods to reduce stock. Our Great Alteration and Enlargement Sale is a decided success. Our store is thronged daily with people taking advantage of the great reductions we are making in prices.

The Model is being enlarged by adding another store on Summit street; the increase of business necessitates this. We have decided to give our patrons a BENEFIT for their liberal patronage in the past, by inaugurating this Great Alteration and Enlargement Sale at a Reduction of from 25 to 50 per cent. from Regular Prices. Remember, we have no water-soaked or shelf-worn trash to offer at one-third off or one-half off at MARKED UP PRICES, but a BONA-FIDE REDUCTION from Regular Prices.

WE WOULD SUGGEST TO BUYERS OF CLOTHING

That they inspect our stock and see our prices (which costs nothing) before making their purchases, and remember we are NOT connected with any other Clothing House in the City.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY

PHYLLIS' VALENTINE.

I.

Phyllis, when she came to town,
In her little homespun gown,
Made the ladies smile;
Why, her hat was two years old!
(Fashion changes, I am told,
Every little while.)

II.

Yet her eyes were clear as dew,
And her cheeks had caught their hue
From the plush pink rose;
Phyllis was more fair to see
Than the maids of high degree
With their silken hose.

III.

Paint and powder, silks and furs
Would not suit a face like hers,
Anyone could see;
Still, when Phyllis came to town
In her little homespun gown
She quite conquered me.
—Gilbert Burgess, in New York Truth.

Love sought is good, but given unsought is better.—Shakespeare.

Here's health to all that we love,
Here's health to all that love us,
Here's health to all those
That love them that love them
That love us.
—Archbishop Denison.

I know a tender word of Latin tongue
Whose praises have throughout all time been sung,
'Tis Amo.
Yet sweeter word I know, which gives to two
The joy that, in the first, one only knew—
Amamus!

THE LOVER'S MESSAGE.

Go, valentine! Seek out the maid,
To me than life more dear;
Invoke St. Cupid's kindly aid,
And whisper in her ear
The message that I give to thee;
Put forth thy utmost art—
Win, if thou canst her fancy free,
And touch her maiden heart.

Tell her that from its steadfast love
There's naught my soul can stir;
Swear by yon glorious orb above
I'm true, till death, to her.
Tell her no blot my 'scutcheon mars,
No spot nor taint of shame;
From sires who bore a patriot's scars
I trace an honored name.

With gifts that wisest mortals seek—
Tell her my cup o'erflows;
Health lights my eye, and on my cheek
Youth—fresh and ruddy, glows.
But should she still unyielding prove,
E'en then do not despair;
Tell her—her heart 'twill surely move—
That I'm a millionaire.
—R. H. Titherington in Life.

TO THE DUDE.

King of the cane suckers! monarch of mash-erdom!
Vulgar folks style you "a tailor made man;"
Heed not their idle words, list to me chappie,
I'll sing you a song in your praise—if I can.

Of the wonders produced at the close of this century
You are the greatest, of that there's no doubt.
The man who would question my statement, I venture, he Doesn't know what he is talking about.

Arrayed in your war paint, bai Jove! your invincible,
Armed with a mild cigarette and a cane,
To break the girls' hearts, I believe is the principal
Object in life which you wish to attain.

We notice your trousers—how quaint is the style of 'em!
Your overcoat buttons are really immense;
Your marvelous waistcoats—you must have a pile of 'em—
Arouse in our bosoms a wonder intense.

Of neckties you own quite a startling variety—
Spotted and stripped and of many a hue;
You've won, by your collars and cuffs, notoriety;
Everyone, chappie, has heard about you!

In the future, perchance, I may write a big book on you;
Rewarded, I'm sure, I should be for my pains.
You are great, you are grand, 'tis a pleasure to look on you;
Perfect you'd be—if you only had brains!
—Judy.

Bid me to live, and I will live thy protestant to be;
Or bid me love, and I will give a loving heart to thee;
Bid me despair, and I'll despair under that cypress tree;
Or bid me die, and I will dare e'en death to die for thee;
Thou art my life, my love, my heart, the very eyes of me,
And hast command of every part, to live or die for thee.
—Herrick.

Not from the whole wide world I chose thee,
Sweetheart, light of the land and sea!
The wide, wide world could not inclose thee,
For thou art the whole wide world to me.
—R. W. Gilder.

THE BACHELOR'S VALENTINE.

Many maidens fair I've known,
Girls with soft and potent eyes
That would melt a heart of stone,
Every maid a lovely prize.
I have worshiped at their feet,
Yielded to their charms; and yet
Is the best of them as sweet
As the girl I've never met?

Shall I meet her? Who can tell?
Life is short, the world is wide.
While I wait, I know it well,
She may be another's bride.
Fate has kept us two apart,
We may never meet; and yet,
Here's a toast: I pledge my heart
To the girl I've never met!
—New York World

A LAWYER'S VALENTINE.

This year of 1892, St. Valentine's the date,
Now this indenture witnesseth:
That of my whole estate,
To her I love the best I give, to have and hold forever
In full fee simple absolute, the true love of the giver.
But lest the grantee in this deed should ever wish to alienate
To others, from herself, the whole, or any part of this estate,
Unless she first shall have obtained from the said grantor his permission,
And do the same with his consent, now, therefore,
This express condition
Is unto this said gift attached, That if she, any part of this
Conveyed estate, however small, shall give away, she owes a kiss
To the said grantor in this deed, unless the said grantor relents;
But if he does not, he may claim the penalty for each offence.
And the said grantor herein named, in testimony of his love,
Has set hereto his hand and seal, the day and year first named above.
—James G. Burnett in Puck.

President Parsons Gives the Investigating Committee

Some Pointers—The Committee Decide to Spend a Day or Two in the Field—To Pump or Not to Pump, That is the Question.

Pursuant to a call issued yesterday, members of the committee on the gas investigation and of the board of gas trustees met in the mayor's office last evening and talked over the proposed investigation. There were present three ex-mayors—Forbes, Jones and Romeis, a president and an ex-president of the gas board.

In the absence of Mayor Emmick, ex-Mayor Romeis was called to the chair. Secretary Tucker came in later.

Mr. Romeis briefly stated the object of the meeting, and asked for suggestions as to mode of procedure.

Mr. Parsons said he judged from the tenor of the resolution it would be the duty of the committee to investigate the gas plant in all its field operations and prospects. The city had now a great deal of undeveloped high pressure territory in Bloom township. The gas board has no money to develop this territory. If the committee decided that it would be unwise to develop more territory, then it might be in order to recommend the use of gas pumps. It had been suggested, he said, that a gas expert might be employed and go along with the committee. He did not think it was necessary as the object was to measure the volume and rock pressure.

Mr. Romeis—"Have you any wells that show a rock pressure?"

Mr. Parsons—"Rock pressure? Why, all gas wells have more or less rock pressure."

Continuing, Mr. Parsons said the output of the wells was 70,000,000 feet and was now furnishing the city 12,000,000 feet. The city had recently put down a well that showed a rock pressure of 260 pounds. Another well recently drilled, but not owned by the city showed a rock pressure of 400 pounds.

Mr. Parsons then pointed out on a specially prepared map the location of the city's property. He said the city owned about 3,000 acres, 1,900 of which was high pressure and undeveloped.

Mr. Lane—"How far is this tract of 1,900 acres from your wells?"

Mr. Parsons—"About eight miles."

Mr. Lane—"Has the rock pressure anything to do with the volume?"

Mr. Parsons—"No, the output seems to have nothing to with the volume. A small producing well may have a high rock pressure, and vice versa."

Dr. Forbes—"How do you know this territory you speak of is high pressure territory?"

"The wells drilled in show it is high pressure territory."

"If you know this to be so, have you not the confidence to go ahead and drill?"

"We have the confidence but not the money."

Mr. Parsons then explained at length how the volume and pressure was measured.

Mr. Romeis—"Why is it that the Northwestern has so much better pressure? Is it a larger number of wells?"

Mr. Parsons—"No; they have not a better pressure of larger supply. They have more wells, and that may help out somewhat."

Speaking of gas pumps Mr. Parsons said the pumps had been successfully used in Pennsylvania. The pumps would give a regular supply. The pressure can be increased during a cold spell. A pumping apparatus would cost about $30,000. The city could pay for it in three months outside the regular income. His idea was to keep the undeveloped territory in reserve and help Findlay and the Northwestern to drill the present developed field.

The matter of increasing the price of gas came up incidentally.

Mr. Parsons said the price could be increased, if necessary.

Dr. Forbes thought an increase of price would bring trouble, as the people would undoubtedly be opposed to an advance.

It seemed to be the sentiment that the price of gas might be advanced advantageously.

Mr. Lane said the first thing to be considered was at the present ratio of decrease, how long was gas going to last?

Mr. Parsons said it was like knocking the head of a bottle of champagne. The first pop is fierce, but it soon settled down to a steady flow. Pumps brought gas out of wells that had been given up as useless.

Mr. Lane asked if a pump would revive the discarded wells at Perrysburg.

Mr. Parsons believed it would.

Dr. Forbes inquired if there was much complaint of a shortage now.

Manager Heston said that not over 20 complaints had been made to-day out of the 6,000.

Mr. Lane said many had undoubtedly given up complaining as they gained nothing by it.

Dr. Forbes—"How far short does the city fall in supplying the 6,000 consumers?"

Mr. Parsons—"We are long in gas, but I don't know just how short the supply is here in the city."

Mr. Burdick gave his experience in the use of gas, where the pressure was high the combustion was better. The creasing the orifice in a mixer did not benefit the consumer. He believed the establishment a a pumping apparatus would settle the gas question in Toledo for some years to come. His theory was that gas is being produced in the earth. There was an excess when the territory was first tapped. It has now reached a point where the daily production was about equal to the demand.

In reply to an inquiry, Mr. Parsons said a pumping apparatus could not be put in this winter, even if it could, they had not the money. He knew one Pittsburg concern that had about abandoned its wells, but with the aid of pumps had secured an unlimited supply.

Mr. Lane—"What will be the use of the committee recommending a gas pump if you have no money to buy it?"

Mr. Tucker laughingly said the committee might supply the money.

Mr. Parsons said the committee could recommend to the council to issue bonds.

Talking of the proposed injunction Mr. Romeis asked if those parties backing the injunctions were not required to give bonds.

Mr. Tucker said the parties did not expect to get an injunction, but like former injunctions, aimed at the validity of the bonds in the eyes of bond buyers.

Mr. Parsons said it was the old scheme to block the project, and he expected it would continue to the end.

Mr. Parsons said the board's income at present was about $23,000 a month, of this 75 per cent. is paid out to redeem the gas certificates and the expenses were about $5,000 a month.

Mr. Lane wanted to know if the board could not manage to create a sinking fund of say $3,000 a month.

Mr. Parsons did not think so. With the gas certificates out of the way the board would not ask for a cent of money.

Dr. Jones said a large moneyed interest here seemed to be opposing the project. It was expected that the committee would make a report in accordance with the facts, and that the committee was capable of appreciating the blessings that a supply of natural gas was to Toledo. He believed those who were opposing the enterprise were opposing their own interests. He considered the gas plant a very valuable acquisition to the city's property.

Dr. Jones proceeded at length to give a geological sketch of gas lands and the strata in which gas is found. The more porous the rock the larger the well. This seemed to be demonstrated by practical tests. He believed that with a pump the city would have an almost inexhaustible supply. The committee should take along an expert who would measure and guage the wells, or men could be sent and do this work and their affidavits taken.

Mr. Romeis wanted to know who was going to pay for transportation, etc.

Dr. Jones said he understood Mayor Emmick had attended to that.

Dr. Jones said he thought the gas board would pay the necessary expenses. He didn't think the board would pay 6 or 8 extra men—reporters for instance.

A reporter remarked that reporters were no more deadheads in an enterprise than doctors.

Mr. Burdick said reporters generally paid their own way.

Dr. Jones responded reporters were young men and perhaps they could walk.

Mr. Parsons said it required a pressure of 10 pounds at the East Side regulator to give a sufficient supply to city consumers. The pressure originally was nearly 100 pounds. The pressure now runs as low as five pounds. Yesterday it was 17 pounds. The line is in the best condition. Experts say it is one of the best ever constructed. Tests show no water, as in the most of cases. The gas don't flow as freely in cold weather as in warm weather. The board had tested this fact.

Mr. Lane said at Maumee the gas was heated more or less at the regulator before entering the town.

President Parsons said the board would furnish all maps, data and such of the city's employes as might be desired.

Dr. Forbes said, speaking of expenses, he would pay his own, and he wanted to go to the field, but he wanted an expert, as he would not know much without one.

It was decided to go to the field Tuesday morning. The trustees and officers will be asked to accompany the committee.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES.

The Colloquial Club Discusses a Woman's Club House

At Its Annual Meeting—Announcements of a Variety of Interesting Meetings for Next Week.

The first annual meeting of the Colloquial club was held in the Law kindergarten rooms yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Sarah E. Bissell presiding. Miss Mary Law read a bright paper upon the institution of the club, its purpose and the fulfillment of it, and upon the outlook for the future. Mrs. Elizabeth A. Murray has acted as historian of the society, and a paper prepared by her was read, a resume of the 17 meetings of the club during the year, the names of the essayists, their subjects and a synopsis of their papers.

A general discussion of the future of the club was then entered upon, participated in by Mesdames Howe, Bentley, Harmon, Grah, Godfrey, Stevens, Elderkin, Dutton, Bissell, Fray, Foley, Lang, Cravens, Segur, jr., Rakestraw, Murphy, and Misses Law, Bouton and Boice. It was decided to continue the club meetings in the present quarters until fall; to establish a question box; to have no officers except an executive committee of three, and no further organization than at present.

The executive committee elected was Miss Mary Law, of the Law kindergarten; Miss Emily Bouton, of the Blade; Mrs. A. P. Stevens, of the Bee. This committee was empowered to choose the historian for the year, and selected Mrs. Murray.

Discussion was had upon the erection of a woman's club house in Toledo the coming summer, which the committee heartily favors, and a committee of five, Mesdames Murphy, Lang and Bissell and Misses Law and Bouton, was appointed to confer with committees of other women's clubs upon the subject.

At the next meeting, Friday afternoon, February 26, Mrs. J. P. Elderkin will give the paper. Subject: "Men, Women and Money."

Announcements.

The Ramabai circle meets Wednesday afternoon, with Mrs. Louise Eck, Madison street.

The New Century club meets Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Scott, Hotel Madison. Paper by Mr. Scott on "Paris and Other Cities."

The Isabella circle meets Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock with Mrs. H. C. Cotter, 538 Western avenue, three doors from Broadway. Paper by Miss Helen Nolan on "The Columbian Discoveries."

The Toledo Society of Economic Inquiry meets on Wednesday evening, at the Steadman Business college. Subject for discussion, Gov. Ashley's proposed amendment to the constitution of the United States.

At the meeting of the Catholic club in Friendship hall, next Thursday evening, S. R. Boyle will read a paper on "A Visit to the Pineries;" Miss Evangeline Moore will read an essay, and an excellent musical program will be rendered.

The non-partisan W. C. T. U. will hold its regular meeting at the residence of Mrs. W. J. Farrar, 913 Madison street, Monday afternoon. The mothers' meeting of this society will be held Tuesday afternoon at the Helping Hand Mission.

On Monday evening a committee from the Toledo Suffrage association, the Political Equality club, the W. C. T. U. organizations, and Joan of Arc assembly of Knights will visit the board of education and endeavor to secure their indorsement of school suffrage for women of Ohio.

MAUDE POWELL

Will positively appear at Harmonic Society concert at Wheeler's, Wednesday next.

Miss Powell is a violiniste whose popularity is well warranted, not only by her technical skill, but also by breadth and animation uncommon in feminine violinists.—Philadelphia Press.

Miss Powell's playing was the feature of the evening. Her technique is remarkable, her bowing and phrasing fine, and her intonation pure.—Boston Evening Transcript.

Reserved sale opens Monday next, 9 a. m.

Checks given out at 8 a. m.

ATTENTION, SIR KNIGHTS.

The members of Maumee Tent, No. 9, K. O. T. M., are requested to assemble at their hall on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 14, at 1 o'clock sharp, for the purpose of attending the funeral of Sir Knight J. A. Eldred, late Lt. Commander of Air Line Tent, No. 47, which occurs at 2 p. m., from Washington street Congregational church.

A good attendance is desired.

JOHN STOLLBERG, Commander.

Checks given out at 8 o'clock.

ONLY A LITTLE WHILE.

The time is short in which to get a good winter suit at John Dalber's at the big cut price, for everything will soon be closed out to make room for spring goods.

THE BAND PLAYED

Boom Ta Ra, Ta Ra Ra Boom Ta Ra

At the Charity Ball Last Evening, While Everybody Tripped to the Inspiring Strains.

The charity ball last evening was a grand social and financial success. The elegant dancing hall in Pythian castle was handsomely decorated for the occasion, and presented a most comfortable and inviting appearance. The dancing floor and parlors were filled with elegantly attired ladies and gentlemen, and the balcony was crowded with onlookers. About $2,000 worth of tickets were disposed of, and the Protestant hospital will receive a handsome benefit. Supper was served, too, from 9:30 to 12 o'clock. The arrangements were such that everything passed off in a most successful manner, and the ladies who have worked so hard to make the ball the success it was can well feel proud of their achievement. A good word should also be spoken of Wolff's orchestra, for the music was new, bright and really excellent.

Mrs. Suder had charge of the floral decorations, which were very artistic.

The dining arrangements were in charge of Mesdames J. B. Ketcham, D. C. Baldwin and Wm. Klein. Different members of the hospital board had separate tables and furnished the same themselves. Included in these were the tables of Mesdames Raymond, Gould, Hussey, Hart, Chapin, Thurstin, Pixley, Drake and Spitzer, and Mrs. Cone furnished a pretty table, though not able to be present.

The floor managers were Messrs. LeBaron, Locke, Reynolds, Hart, Witker, Gibson, Holbrook, Walbridge, Rundel, Secor and Baker.

Some of the guests from abroad were Miss Stuart, Mrs. John Coghlin's guest; Miss Gale and Mrs. T. W. Penfield, of Willoughby, O.

Prominent among the ladies who, with their dignified gentlemen friends tripped the light fantastic, were: The Misses Mildred Campbell, attired in black chiffon embroidered in red, hat and gloves to match; Cora Bunker, pink chiffon; Ann Franklin, yellow silk, trimmed in black lace; Jessie Thurstin, blue silk; Fannie Hubbel, red silk; Maggie Hunter, of Put-in-Bay, tan colored cloth suit, bonnet and gloves to match; Ella Suder, a becoming blue silk gown with festoons of pink roses; Miss Gale, who is Mr. and Mrs. Friend's guest, was charming in a yellow silk; Miss Bess Scott, pink silk, with opera hat of pink and black velvet; Mrs. Roland Scribner, yellow silk and chiffon; Miss Charlotte Whitaker, a becoming silk plaid, and lace; Mrs. A. L. Spitzer, violet moire silk, point lace and diamonds; Mrs. C. B. Lloyd, and elegant silk-stripe gauze with ribbon trimmings; Mrs. C. W. Waite, black silk and roses; Mrs. Calvin Wynn, blue gauze; Mrs. H. H. Pierce, black velvet, and chiffon; Miss Mattie Norton, lavender and white stripe, silk; Miss Hudson, a dainty yellow silk; Mrs. J. G. Gould, black silk, white and black trimmings; Miss Cora Law, cream and black velvet; the Misses Teipel, black cloth gowns, with hats and gloves to match; Miss Stuart, white silk, with fluer de lis figure; Mrs. Yaryan, burnt rose silk, opera hat and gloves; Mrs. C. J. Kroh, blue silk and lace; Daisy Lorenz wore a pretty scarlet mull, Kittie Baker a scarlet silk; Nellie Dunning, red cloth suit; Nellie Waite, white cloth gown, velvet trimmings; Mrs. Walter Woodford, heliotrope silk with garniture of violets; Mrs. Charles Roland, a white India silk, prettily made; Mrs. Judd Richardson, an elegant gown of heavy corded rose silk.

Miss Carry Parsons, chiffon over striped brown silk and carried Mermot roses; Miss Lulu Gibson, a scarlet silk costume; Miss Grace Walbridge, scarlet silk with black lace trimmings; Miss Bird Walbridge, gown of yellow material with black velvet trimmings and girdle; Mrs. Ed Baumgardner, handsome costume of scarlet crepe, fashioned entrain, black trimmings and diamonds; Mrs. S. A. Court, a Spanish ecru lace over pink silk; Miss Nora Waite, a very pretty gown of blue brocaded silk and velvet, with embroidered chiffon garniture; Miss Ora McMillan, a pretty blue gown with silver trimmings; Miss Jennie Burdick, pink figured guaze, with gray shoes and gloves and carried pink flowers; Mrs. Thos. Campbell wore her wedding dress, white satin and chiffon; Mrs. Edson, an old rose silk gown; Mrs. C. J. Wooley, a dainty white lace gown.

O. Y. C. COMMITTEES

Appointed Last Evening by Commodore Klauser.

The Toledo Harmonics to Sing Under the Auspices of the Club—New Members Admitted.

An important meeting of the O. Y. C. was held last evening with Commodore Klauser in the chair. The most important matter that came up was the appointment of the various committees by the commodore, as follows:

Entertainment committee—James H. Pheatt, Clinton W. Hickok, George W. Stevens, Denison Steele and Wm. Stackhouse.

Committee on admissions—Col. John S. Harbeck, jr., William Clark, W. F. Van Leo, Horace J. Potter and George C. Dunham.

The following new members were elected: Anthony C. Bay, Morton McCarrick, Thomas S. Merrell, A. D. Pelton, Alexander Arnold and Louis Vilhauer.

Mr. Bills read the minutes of the meeting of the new Inter-Lake and Straits Yachting association held at Detroit December 21. "Seven yacht clubs were represented," he said. "It was decided that the delegates report back to their clubs; that the association shall have a governing board consisting of three delegates from each club, appointed for one year, and that the clubs represented be charter members of the association, these delegates to have power to perfect the organization."

In accordance with the report Geo. W. Bills, Herman R. Klauser and Henry Tracy were appointed delegates.

Dr. H. M. Bacon was elected an honorary member. Letters were read from G. Willis Morse, R. B. Moore and C. P. Curtis. Through Col. Chas. Caughling, Mr. Robinson Locke presented the club with two handsome pictures, for which thanks were ordered returned.

It was arranged that the concert by the Toledo Harmonic society next Wednesday evening at Wheeler's, will be given under the auspices of the O. Y. C., one-third of the profits to go to the club.

A GRAND SUCCESS

Is the Toledo Institute of University Extension.

Prof. H. C. Adams Delivers His Fifth Lecture to a Large Audience—Further Announcements for the Course

Again the High school hall was packed to its full capacity to hear Prof. Henry C. Adams talk upon "Trades Unions and the Labor Problem." He gave the history of labor organizations, the ancient guilds, the Elizabethan labor code, conspiracy laws, and the evolvement of the trades unions, and then dwelt upon the philosophy of the industrial movement as it is shown by this history.

His conclusions are that labor organizations can to a degree control wages, and that they do by forcing wages up hasten and strengthen the combinations of employers, and the concentration of capital in the hands of the few.

Of regulation of apprentices he said that the old reason for labor organizations attempting it, that of making good workmen, no longer existed, and that the only reason trades unions now had apprentice rules was to limit the number of workmen and force them into the union. This, he said, is indefensible, it obstructs work, and decreases the output, a result that is detrimental to everybody.

The existence of trades unions he holds to be legitimate, and said, "Combination among workmen is a necessary step in the direction of the rechrystalization of industrial conditions." He does not think labor organizations yet fully understand their own power, nor the right channels in which to exercise it.

Through trades unions he believes a "federation of industries" will yet be established, which will regulate all industrial questions without governmental interference; in which workmen will have rights, such as tenure of employment, which employers will be bound to respect, and upon which employers will not be allowed to infringe.

Prof. Adams was listened to with breathless interest throughout, and greeted with a burst of applsue at the conclusion of his lecture. The last lecture in this course, Friday evening next, a consideration of the monopoly problem and its solution, is certain to be of great value and interest.

Executive Committee Arrangements

The executive committee of the Toledo institute met at the close of the lecture, and considered several matters. The necesity of securing a larger hall for the coming lectures was discussed, and action on the same was deferred until it is seen how many tickets are sold for the next course.

This course is Prof. Demmon's on "Masterpieces of English Literature." Course tickets will be on sale at Brown, Eager & Hull's and at the High school building, afternoon of Monday next. The committee considered the price for this course, and decided to leave it as at present, $1 for single course ticket, 25 cents for single lecture; reduced price on more than one course ticket, to be used in one family.

The committee also decided to secure one lecture by Prof Macintyre, of Oxford university, England, who has been identified with the University Extension movement in that country, and who is now in this country. His services for Toledo have been secured for Saturday evening, April 23d, and his subject will be "The Ancient, Medieval and Modern Map of the World."

"I have been afflicted with an affection of the throat from childhood, caused by diphtheria, and have used various remedies, but have never found anything equal to Brown's Bronchial Troches."—Rev. G. M. F. Hampton, Piketon, Ky. Sold only in boxes.

Cards are out announcing the wedding, on March 3, of Miss Belle McBride, of Waterloo, Ind., niece of Mrs. Capt. T F. Shipherd of this city, to Mr. Will Saam, of Gibsonburg, O.

Mr. J. Lasalle, who is now in New York accompanied by Mr. J. Williamson, of the carpet department, will arrive home early next week, having made large purchases in every line.

Mr. Sylvester B. Worden, who has been confined to his home with an attack of the grip for over a month, is able to be out on the streets again, much to the gratification of his friends.

Miss Mattie Gruber entertained at cards at her home on Twelfth street last evening. Dainty refreshments were served and a few hours spent in dancing. It was a delightful occasion.

Col. H. S. Bunker, a prominent attorney of Toledo, and S. H. Waring, cashier of the Ketcham National bank of Toledo, were at the Hotel Cadillac yesterday.—Detroit Free Press.

The Chopin society met with Miss Lily Trost on Monday evening. Aside from the regular program, some artistic numbers were given by Mr. Arthur Trost and Mr. Carl Wuerfel, who were guests of the evening. The next musicale will be held at Miss Clouse's studio.

A quiet but pretty wedding occurred Wednesday, the parties being Mr. Frank Hall and Miss Margurite Bottmer. The ceremony took place at the residence of Rev. J. A. P. McGaw. Mr. and Mrs. Hall will locate in the city. Mrs. Hall has many friends here who will be pleased to hear Toledo is to be her future home. The best wishes will follow the couple through life.

Mr. William Kaney, of Titusville, Pa., who is a brother of Mr. J. G. Kaney, of Toledo, has, in company with his eldest son, W. W., just left for a trip to Bohemia, Austria, where they go under contract with a German syndicate to drill wells for gas, oil, etc. Mr. Kaney has been considered one of the best experts in the oil country for years, and if there is anything valuable in the Austrian earth it will be found.

Mr. Richard Ward, of 113 Lafayette street, was among the entertainers of the week. His guests were Jennie Odell, Jay Westfall, Jennie Salima, Burt Owens, Kitty Nolan, Scott Owens, Bessie Van Horn, Howard Ansell, Maud Odell, Will Neubert, Lizzie Crawford, Charlie Urbanski, Anna Long, Jim Burns, Gertie Ansell, Jack Delahanty, Ella Crawford, John Hannon, Sidney Westfall, Will Wilcox, Maud Ansell, Harry McKee, Bella Offers, Sam Cunningham, Lizzie Daley.

A most enjoyable surprise party was given Miss Addie Hettuck at her home on Dorr street last evening. Among those present were the Misses Grace Bernard, Bessie Van Horn, Kitty Nolan, Mamie Breed, Winifred Bailey, Millie Leteste, Britian Stough, Hattie Wilson, Irene Hoag, Orlie Kootcher and Myrtie Lowe; Messrs. Jack Louis, Fred Whitmore, Vincent Gegandet, Earl Hules, Fred Annabel, Frank Fugate, Louis Friedman, Ed Bailey, Fred Henning, Mr. McKinley, Charlie Myers and Irving Book. It was one of the most enjoyable parties of the season.

A most enjoyable evening was spent by the Cherry Street Progressive Euchre club Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. N. Barteile, of Walnut street. The prizes were artistic. Mr. Mathias and Mrs. Sanzenbacher were the winners of the first prize. Mr. Will P. Kohler and Mrs. Mathias received the booby prizes. There was a tie for the consolation between Mr. Mathews and Mr. P. K. Werden, each having played seven lone hands. Mr. Mathews came off victorious.

Mrs. Fred C. Smith was hostess to a very prettily appointed card party Wednesday afternoon at her pleasant home on Cherry street. Progressive euchre was played, there being three tables. The favors were very pretty. Mrs. Weber took the first prize, having won twelve games out of thirteen. The booby prize was given to Miss Lily Unbehaun. A very dainty course lunch was served. The guests were Mrs. Capt. T. F. Shipherd and her niece, Miss Bella McBride of Waterloo, Ind.; Mrs. Edward Unbehaun, Mrs. Ed Groshenbacher, Mrs. Jack Wittman, Mrs. Charles Herssig, Mrs. A. Weber, Miss Rose Dischenger, Miss Kate Englehardt, Miss Anna Weber, Miss Lily Unbehaun, Mrs. Perry K. Werden and Mrs. F. W. Dyar.

TOLEDO, OHIO, FEBRUARY 13, 1892.

They do say the republican league convention in Columbus last night snubbed Sherman. Not at all surprising, it was a Foraker show.

Again the foremost republican of Toledo is greatly honored, and despite the mendacious attack of party rivals. Here's to W. I. Squire, the boss of 'em all.

The contrariety of courtesy existing between Admiral Flickinger and his colleagues seems to be extending. The Admiral must look well to his laurels else his ship of reputation will be scuttled.

No. One, out went George Fields, Toledo's candidate for penitentiary manager. No. Two, out went the Toledo claimant for the labor commissionership. Toledo is a Foraker town and seems not to be in it.

The Bee is real sorry for ex-Senator Geyser, of Fulton. It was a mean trick the republican senate played when his nomination for trustee of the Toledo asylum was pigeon-holed. Senator Rorick, of his own county, should have had influence enough to prevent the humiliation.

The St. Louis Republic has been the most ardent supporter in the west of Cleveland for head of the democratic ticket in 1892, but of late seems to have imbibed something of the spirit of the rest of this section that a western man must lead if New York does not soon get together. It now suggests the second place on the ticket for New York, with a proviso, as follows:

If Hon. Roswell P. Flower behaves very nicely and roosts very high during the next four months he can go on the ticket as vice-president to help a western man sweep the country. That is to say, he can if Mr. Cleveland is not called on to lead, for if the democrats need Mr. Cleveland they have a right to him regardless of what Tammany thinks of it.

The New York Voice, national organ of the prohibitionists, has been thrown out of the mails by a very large number of postmasters, its publishers claim. They have gathered and forwarded to Postmaster-General Wanamaker charges and specifications substantiating this claim against a number of republican postoffice-holders. This is very remarkable. Were this a wicked democratic administration the finding of the Voice publishers would of course be easily accepted. But this is a truly-good government we have now, and its Presbyterian president and Sunday-school-superintendent-postmaster-general must surely want the people to read "The Voice." Here's mysteries for you.

While New England is clamoring in legislative halls for "free wool," a manufacturer of horse blankets is telling a New York organ how his business has flourished under the new law. It is just possible that people will learn, in time, that the tariff doesn't control entirely the rising and setting of the sun, the earth and its teeming interests. It retards, and it builds up, here and there with unjust discrimination, but there are a few other influences at work in this country of wonderful resources; the fields would produce and the industrious and inventive people would go on with their plans and achievements if the McKinley tax law were swept out of existence. Indeed, the number of well-informed people is daily increasing, who realize that the hindrance of it is greater than the help, and that its give-and-take effect is undermining the very foundations of a free Republic.

The state of Iowa has been the most prompt of any in the union, perhaps, in meeting the question as to what shall be done for the famishing in Russia. Weeks ago Governor Boies appointed a committee of one representative from each congressional district to constitute a Russian Famine Relief Committee. It is proposed to send a great quantity of shelled corn along with hand mills for grinding and recipes for using, as to Russians the uses of American corn are unknown. An auxiliary committee of women has been named and these will extend the work into every township. Minnesota shares, with Iowa the credit for prompt action.

One would not dampen in the least degree this glorious ardor of charity. The starving must be fed and at the same time Russian despotism should be shaken to its foundation if the protests and denunciations of the civilized world can effect it. The exiled and robbed peasantry is the legitimate outcome of this governmental inhumanity. Because Russia will impoverish her people to maintain a great army and a remarkable armament ready and bristling for war at every point, must the countries of the world come to her assistance that she be able to maintain this despotic supremacy? Russia could buy food for its starving millions. At least she could furnish transportation for a rich gift of food. Out of our abundance we should give, promptly, generously; but we should not lose sight of the main facts in the case. This country is dead against helping to support royalty and an aristocracy, at home or abroad.

THE QUARREL IN NEW YORK.

If the demonstration in the ranks of the democracy of New York, for and against the distinguished ex-President, and the present Senator, were a new quarrel of democrats, there might be grave apprehension of the result in this presidential year. But it is not new, neither is it a surprise to the party at large. The row is almost as old as the hills, and for a generation the trouble has been taken into the national convention of the party for knock-down settlement. It is the old fight between Tammany and the antis. In 1876 it was John Kelly against Tilden, and few democrats who witnessed the bitter fight in St. Louis believed Mr. Tilden could carry his state the following November. But he did. In 1884 the trouble was renewed in Chicago, and Tammany was almost brutally knocked out of the convention. Again the vote of New York was despaired of. Yet Cleveland did carry that state, and was elected, as Tilden was elected in 1876.

At present Tammany controls the state machine and the other party appears as the protestant. It is the first time the cards are so turned, and a deal of a row is the consequence.

The democrats of other states need not be unnecessarily alarmed at the situation in New York. There is no dearth of brainy democrats who would ably guide the destiny of the republic if elevated to the presidency. Neither is there such a call for hero worshiping as would preclude all but one or two from the lists of available candidates. Neither will the issue of issues be lost sight of if New York democrats fall upon themselves unto destruction. In 1876 the tax plank of the democratic platform was "tariff for revenue only. It was renewed in 1880 and 1884 and 1888. It is ancient democratic doctrine, older than any living democrat. We give all praise to those who have splendidly advocated the doctrine, but the principle is better and greater than any champion of the cause. It is a living issue, and in the fore of the present year's campaign the banner of honest trade laws will cheer the mighty army to heroic strife and glorious victory.

Let the New Yorkers alone in their quarrel. They may scar each other, but they can't seriously injure the democratic party of the United States. The star of empire long since left the Atlantic coast. In the radiant splendor of fixedness, and the glory of its own light, it beneficently illumines the central west, and its glory extends in graciousness over states that do not depend upon ancient heritage for victories present or future.

The mighty west can nominate a western candidate and elect a western president, if the New York democrats cannot agree among themselves; and the choice will in no wise detract from the standard of excellence raised by democracy, neither will the issue lose its greatness and power by the departure from the custom of going east for candidates. The issue and the party are indestructible.

STATESMAN AS WELL AS ORATOR

If Governor Boies of Iowa has been looked upon as "a lucky fellow" in the way of political preferment, he is daily demonstrating that his "luck" has the backing of merit and ability. His address on the occasion of the Tilden birthday event, in Denver, would do credit to any statesman; it is worthy to be placed beside the best of Grover Cleveland's elucidations of democracy and the duty of the party that stands for its principles. He first paid his respects to Colorado in eloquent words—the state that had more than quadrupled its population in two decades, and to Denver, which had grown from a city of 35,000 to 100,000 in population in ten little years.

"The Democracy of 1892" was his theme. "What will the people expect of it? On what lines must the battles be fought? For what principles must it stand to be worthy of success?" From this outlined text, Mr. Boies gave his hearers a clear definition of those principles and deduced therefrom a logical formula for party action. He said:

"In a broad sense the democratic party must continue to stand as the champion of the personal rights of the individual. It must at all times recognize the fact that men inherit from their Maker certain natural rights that neither kings, potentates, nor majorities can rightfully despoil. That chief among these in a government of the people is the right of each individual to be as fairly and justly treated by the laws thereof as is every other individual."

This foundation fact granted, the speaker then considered individuals in groups—"distinct parts of the grand aggregate of which the nation is formed," and said: "Democracy must stand for the inflexible rule that, between classes, as between individuals, there shall be no distinction of right, no favor to one at the expense of another. Applying these principles to practical questions with which the American people must deal and remembering the policy to which the republican party is committed, it is easy to forsee the supreme issue upon which the parties will divide in the contest of '92."

These are ringing words of honest import. The doctrine of governmental aid to distinct classes of citizens is imbedded in that political organization, and by the same power may the interests of other classes be retarded. "Unnecessary taxation is unjust taxation" is one of the ethics of democratic creed, put there to stay.

The speaker declared in favor of a tariff for revenue only, so arranged that the burden fall on the luxuries and not the necessities of living, and with the just demands of trade wisely considered. Of the present-day situation, created and fostered by republican legislation: "Thirty years ago we could count our millionaires on our fingers; now they are numbered by thousands. If conditions remain unchanged who can foretell the future? Wealth is the product of labor. Great fortunes represent the earnings of great numbers. That one man may control millions, many men must be poor. What has changed and is daily changing this stream of wealth into channels that bear it into the hands of the few? It is unjust legislation. Can we change these laws? Can we divide these currents and distribute their golden wealth among those who produce it? This is the supreme question of the hour. No power on earth can accomplish this if the democracy shall falter. This is the issue for 1892, and this issue alone will lead us to victory."

This keynote from the West is inspiring. The utterances of Gov. Boies, shorn as they are of much of their eloquence by necessity of condensation, are statesmanlike and comprehensive. They are also indicative of the fact that we have splendid presidential timber "in the woods," remote enough from the bickerings of the erstwhile Empire state.

EX-MARSHAL WADE.

To-day Benjamin F. Wade, of this city, vacates the office of United States Marshal, after four years of faithful service. So well has he performed the duties that the President of the United States did not disturb him when the scramble of republican place hunters was persistent and insistent. So well did he do his duty that the republican comptroller of the treasury said there was no better administered office in the whole country. This is a high compliment and is creditable to Toledo, as it is honorable to Mr. Wade. It affords the Bee pleasure to say these things of genial Ben, for he deserves it, and more.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

In connection with the call extended to Professor Von Holst to a chair in the Chicago University, the Times of that city comments on "the singular fact" that the three most comprehensive works on American civil government have been written by foreigners: De Tocqueville's "Democracy in America," Bryce's "American Commonwealth," and Von Holst's "Constitutional History of the United States."

But is this remarkable? Premising that a thorough study of a subject is made, without which no scholar worthy of the name would write on any subject, is not outside of our own country certain to write without that bias which must attach to any one who is born and bred and educated amid the conditions of which he must write? In a sense, these foreign writers can look upon us as we shall appear to a historian in some far future time. The future historian will write of our day and times for his day and time as one who is removed from us by distance, and disassociated from us by different environment and traditions, can now write.

This is distinctly our gain, as is proven by the three great works above specified. By the labors of their authors we can not only "see ourselves as others see us," but as coming generations will see us. And a showing to be proud of, by the way, we make according to the summing up of these renowned publicists.

Joseph Rossitor, 336 East Thirty-Sixth street, New York city, handled a shovel and pick in excavating the ruins of the Hotel Royal. The horrible sights that were unearthed made him seriously ill, so ill that he had to lay down shovel and pick for some hours. The manager of the work advised him not to try it again, but with tears in his eyes he begged the "privilege" of trying again because it was all the job he could get, and his family were starving for food. And yet there are people who say there is plenty of work for any man who is willing to work.

The breadth of this country, spanned as it is by lightning rails and electric wires, comes forcibly to the attention in various ways. For instance, who, east of Omaha, knew that "Mr. Thurston" had a boomlet contingent on Blaine's declination?

The Boston Globe says President Harrison "once more experiences carking care and that tired feeling," having heard of the McKinley boom in Ohio.

It is reported that ex-Gov. Thayer, of the Unshaken Hand, is receiving solicitations from lecture bureaus and museums.

The Census Misinformation.

The committee on ways and means find it difficult to procure from Mr. Porter's census bureau the information desired on the subject of wool manufacturing. The committee would find it still more difficult to satisfy the country that legislation based on Porter's statistics could be relied upon as trustworthy. When the premise is doubtful the conclusion is also doubtful.—Philadelphia Record.

The Little, Big Man.

If Harrison would follow the example set him by Blaine and take himself out of the presidential race there would be some show for the republican party. A man of the people might then be nominated who could command the respect and confidence of the country. Harrison is as near to a nobody as any man in the republican party.—Marquette Times

Several.

Mr. Newberry, of Illinois, has introduced in congress a riotously appropriative bill for the advancement of a reform in spelling which has been originated and perfected by one Charles A. Story. There are several matters in this land of the free that need reform a great deal more than orthography does.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

The Horror of It.

There are over 10,000 regularly organized brass bands in Pennsylvania, with 100,000 players. These figures make even the most ardent lover of music feel tired when he remembers that all these bands will be out in this fall's campaign.—Pittsburg Times.

Foraker Is a Hoodoo.

Joseph Benson Foraker is said to have transferred his allegiance to Alger. This removes Alger as a presidential possibility. Foraker is a hoodoo.—Kansas City Star.

A Hard Road to Travel.

Judge Woods is finding Jordan a hard to travel. If hope deferred maketh the heart sick the judge must begin to feel like lying down.—Richmond Item.

DAUGHERTY INVESTIGATION.

Apthorpe Places All Responsibility on Editor Davis.

Columbus, O., Feb. 13.—(Special)—The Daugherty investigation committee met yesterday afternoon and called Hon. Henry Apthorpe, a stockholder and one of the editors of the Columbus Post.

Mr. Apthorpe said he knew nothing of the charges published until they appeared and had no knowledge of their truthfulness. He put all the responsibility on Managing Editor Davis.

CUTTING DOWN EXPENSES.

Washington, Feb. 13.—The sub-committee of the house committee on Indian affairs which has been working on the Indian appropriation bill has nearly completed its work and will make its report to the full committee to-morrow. The sub-committee has made a reduction from the appropriation of last year which was about $8,000,000. Commissioner Morgan of the Indian bureau, was called in conference with the sub-committee and approved the workings of the committee.

M'BRIDE'S NEW POSITION.

Columbus, O., Feb. 13.—John McBride, state commissioner of labor statistics, has resigned his office and was chosen president of the United Mine-workers of America by acclamation. P. H. Penna was re-elected vice-president and Patrick McBride secretary.

The election for members of the executive board was held by ballot, the following being elected: John P. Jones, of Ohio; W. C. Webb, of Kentucky; M. F. Moran, of West Virginia, and James White, of Pennsylvania.

THE JUNIOR BLAINE.

Deadwood, S. D., Feb. 13.—Judge Thomas has ordered J. G. Blaine, jr., to show cause, February 16, why his answer to Mrs. Blaine's application for divorce should not be stricken from the record for contempt of court, and why the case should not be set for immediate trial.

FREE WOOL BILL.

Washington, Feb. 13.—The democratic members of the ways and means committee held a conference this morning on the Springer free wool bill and discussed its provisions. No conclusion was reached, although there is no doubt that the bill will be reported favorably with possibly some minor changes.

SILVER PURCHASES.

Washington, Feb. 13.—The treasury department to-day purchased 159,000 ounces of silver as follows, 89,000 at .9050 and 70,000 at .9060 per ounce. The offers were 714,000 ounces. The total silver purchases for the month, including today, aggregate 2,093,000 ounces.

LINCOLN NOT A CANDIDATE.

London, Feb. 13.—Cable dispatches from the United States having freely mentioned the name of Hon. Robert T. Lincoln in connection with the nomination for the presidency, Mr. Lincoln denies in the most positive terms that he is or intends to be a candidate.

CHAIR OF SOCIAL SCIENCE.

Waterville, Me., Feb. 13.—It is announced that President A. W. Small, of Colby university, has been chosen professor of social science in the university of Chicago.

MINISTER TO JAPAN.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 13.—It is stated by Major George H. Bonebrake that he has private assurances that he will shortly be appointed minister to Japan.

YOUNG FAIR DEAD.

San Francisco, Feb. 13.—James G. Fair, jr., eldest son of ex-Senator Fair, died suddenly this morning from heart failure. He was 20 years of age.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Ex-Senator Palmer, president of the world's fair, is now in virtual control of the Detroit Evening Journal.

It is to be hoped that when the youthful khedive gives that banquet to his old masters they will not make a painting of the town.

A Washington correspondent says that Reed's voice sounds like a strong wind in a pine tree—the sough of a soured man, as it were.

Queens County, Nova Scotia, has elected Frank G. Forbes, liberal, to the Dominion parliament on a platform of unrestricted reciprocity with the United States.

Jay Gould declares that Russell Sage is one of the most charitable men living, and no doubt Russell Sage would say the same thing of Jay Gould. What is needed is a certificate from an outsider.

Mrs. Lew Wallace says that Florence Nightingale was a slender woman of graceful figure and great dignity of manner. She exhibited remarkable fortitude at all times, and especially when present at surgical operations.

Senator Gibson, of Maryland, whose personal good looks and gastronomic abilities have oftener been alluded to than his other good qualities, is a bridegroom, having married recently Mrs. Hallyday, of Richmond, the sister of Mrs. John Randolph Tucker.

MENTIONED ON THE STREETS.

That grain men will swoop down on congress next week to work against the anti-option bill.

That President Squire still remains at the head of the column, circulars to the contrary notwithstanding.

That would-be Superintendent Rorick is not grieved over Bill Geyser's discomfiture on the asylum trusteeship.

That Parks Foster is once more happy; he's on the asylum board, and can look after his gas certificates on his visits.

That Congressman Schmuhl wants the building inspectorship should the bill providing for the office get through the legislature.

That the cold spell of the past day or two has caused the usual amount of complaint as to gas supply among city consumers.

That base-ballists will have a chance to-night to show their interest in the proposition to have a team in Toledo next summer.

That there are several party men within the city limits who are not such admirers of Governor McKinley as they were a few months since.

That during the weekly adjournment Lucas county's representatives will hold a meeting here to determine who is the king bee of the delegation.

That ex-Senator Geyser regrets that he pressed his claims for asylum trustee before consulting Governor McKinley, since he has been beautifully turned down.

That Billy Vena did not go to Columbus to hear our own Charley Cottrell orate on American tin, although there is no subject on which Charley is better posted

That the spirit manifested by candidates for places on the democratic ticket this spring indicates that there is a belief the good old party will succeed. So mote it be.

That there is no regret among Toledo candidates for other state berths over the selection of Statesman Lewis for labor commissioner; it makes their chances a little better.

That Mayor Emmick was not so unmindful of his candidacy for oil inspector while in Columbus yesterday. The remonstrance from the Germans was riddled with his easy eloquence.

That Charley Herssig was promised the appointment of deputy oil inspector if he would get out of the way of Street Commissioner Bower, but it probably will turn out to be a barren agreement.

That an armed peace now exists between Chief O'Dwyer and Judge Sala; they make formal calls upon each other, and no one has room to doubt they do not love as did David and Jonathan.

That George Fields will not be such an active worker in the republican ranks in the future. Past efforts have not seemingly been appreciated, at least in a substantial manner—penitentiary manager, for instance.

That many of the republican city and county officials managed to make their business trips to Columbus agree with the date for the league convention. This is only a coincidence, however, which might not happen again in a hundred years.

MARGINAL NOTES.

As an instance,* and the only one, when a policeman got set respectably into a pretty pen picture, the following is quoted from "The Red-Litten Windows":

"I leaned against the wall, an indescribable sense of peace stealing over my heart. Instead of anxious thoughts and plans for the future which might well have beset me, existence seemed but a dream of delight, and I a dream within a dream. I was conscious of the keenest, the vaguest of sensations, tingling with them to the very finger-tips. The breeze that wafted the fragrance of the Park flowers lay cool and kind about me. The silence was unbroken, save from the far-off rythmical measure of a distant policeman advancing and retreating on his beat."

The scene was near Regent's park and the policeman was a London bobby. One might question about the breeze "that lay about me"—what kind of a breeze it would be to do that, and might wonder why it was not said, the silence was broken "by", instead of "from", the "rythmical measure of a policeman".

There are other expressions in this, the latest volume of Cassell's Unknown series, that might suggest carelessness, for instance:

"Groping one day with idle fingers I came upon the photograph of a man stuck behind a mirror."

Guiltless of punctuation, the first thought is of the man in that uncomfortable predicament caught by a kodak. "I came upon a man's photograph stuck behind a mirror" would have said what was meant.

Australia is a country that has as yet been touched lightly by the fiction writers, Mrs. Cross, wife of an English clergyman, writing over the pen name of Ada Cambridge, has done some felicitous work in this direction. She has been a resident of Australia for the last twenty years. The "Black Tara" among the mountains is the scene of a delightful Christmas picnic party, camping out for the night. They were sitting about a fire, kindled in a sheltered place a little way from the tent for the night air was a little chilly in that altitude. And this is the scene they looked upon:

"The blue of the ranges turned to black. Those waves upon waves of primeval gum-forest, soft as sapphire velvet in the sun-tinted dusk, showed but their delicate upper edges against the sky—a sky that was shining still though it was full night. Plovers cried plaintively from the valley below, and curlews called from the far-away hills, which repeated each long drawn wail in echoes that seemed to come from a long distant world. The frogs filled the air with that shrilling bubble of sound which is the note of woodland solitude; and small rustlings and scratchings among the trees betrayed the neighborhood of curious opossums. * * The wail of the curlew is like a lost spirit among the infinite worlds. Never was a bird note more tragically wild and sad, more affecting to the imagination of the listener who hears it in the lonely Australian bush in the loneliest hours, across what seems an immeasurable distance of unpeopled space. In the hushed intervals the even more ghostly and far away plaint of a mopoke was heard—a mere shadow of a sound though clear as a tolled bell; and the nightingale with its charming versatility is, to the ear, a homely and barndoor sort of creature compared with that bird of the southern night that has but its one pathetic note. All the echoes cry in answer as in uttermost desolation and despair."

"In a Corner at Dodsley's," a department in the New England Magazine, by Walter Blackburn Harte, hits off hitable things in unhesitating fashion. Apropos a present-day craze he says:

To succeed in literature, one must nowadays first succeed in something else. The public in these days is emancipated from the old traditions, which, a hundred years ago, made a knowledge and appreciation of good literature essential to a man in any sort of social station. The day of literary men in literature is over. It is now the triumphal hour of the imbecile millionaire, the rich society woman, who has nerves, hysteria, a vast deal of impudence, a store of proverbial platitude and a continual itch for notoriety; actresses who have more gowns than brains; English lords and ladies, and some assinine royalties. There is a perfect epidemic of "famous" people—the market is flooded with the sons and daughters of famous people. It seems to be the fashion in polite society to be famous nowadays. Every woman who has been fortunate enough to marry a Money-bags is sought by the editors of newspapers and magazines, and writes twaddle about her wardrobe or the arrangement of her dinner table. The possession of dollars in abundance seems to be accepted as an indication of the possession of ideas and literary ability.

We all deplore the excessive literary production of the age, but I think, as far as England and America are concerned, at least, that if railroad kings, the royalties, the aristocracy and the dollarocracy would only consent to return to their own little drama of tomfoolery again, there would not be much reason to complain of an over-production in literature.

That the thirst is for notoriety and not for an honest fame which involves training and labor, is shown by the acknowledged fact that in many instances all the writing done by the reputed authors of these articles is the affixing of their signatures. And this answers for a certainty the question "What's in a Name," and assures the reader that a trained pen was brought into requisition after all, and the only thing to disgust him is the gauzy deceit. Some of the "famous" papers bear the ear marks of originality, however, and it is these of which our critic so bitterly complains.

HUMAN, LIKE THE REST OF US.

Sir Edwin Arnold, knighted poet, philosopher and cosmopolitan that he is, is still the man who understands hay-making when the sun shines. He knows there is nothing goes, in the press literature of this country, like gossip about persons, especially distinguished persons and most especially those who prefer not to be gossiped about and who have attempted for reasons of their own, to veil their peculiarities and hide their daily habits of daily life from the daylight of common observation. Our own celebrities open wide their doors to English interviewers who picture them and their surroundings for foreign journals in many lines at so much a line. One who signs himself Raymond Blathwyt is an illustration. He got himself invited to receptions, dinners and teas in New York city, was honored by attention from Julia Ward Howe and her daughters, and others, and sailing homeward across the sea with his notes in his pockets, informed a group of Americans that "American society is quite spoiled for English gentlemen: so much is made of the ladies." And when one of his new-made acquaintances ventured an inquiry about the newspaper editors and literary workers of London, he hastened to say "I would be glad to give you letters to any of them, but they would not be honored; they are a tremendous exclusive set.' So Mr. Arnold, himself one of them, and thoroughly acquainted with them all behind the scenes, will take advantage of his opportunity, to gratify his American readers, by the personal gossip which no reciprocity of courtesy hitherto, has made possible. He has already offended Lord Tennyson by a magazine paper of personalities about the poet laureate his family and daily life; now a series of papers on the "personal traits and habits of Mr. Gladstone" is promised. Sir Edwin has struck a rich vein and may compensate himself for the loss he sustained by not being able to continue his lectures. He will have larger audiences for his personal gossip than his most exquisite verses could command.

COLONY OF JAPS.

The Mikado's Subjects as Represented in Brooklyn.

It is not necessary, as Sir Edwin Arnold has done, to go to Japan in order to realize the ease and rapidity with which the Japanese can adapt themselves to circumstances, and in a few decades, to pass into a state of transition from which they are emerging with changed laws, customs, manners, political institutions, and, perhaps, religious opinions as well, always supposing that the philosophical Japs ever did entertain opinions other than superficial on religious subjects. The transition may be observed any day in Brooklyn in miniature, says the Eagle of that city, and, perhaps, in no better place than in the Japanese boarding house kept by N. Saito. Here may be noted the assimilation of American ideas, manners, customs, clothing, and ways of living generally by the Japanese, also the very marked contrast between them and the Chinese, men of kindred races, but so different in anything else. The Chinese do their laundry work, make money and go back to the flowery land without taking with them any more of the English language than "Washee, payee," while the enterprising Jap, if he ever returns to the far orient, goes so as a polished traveler who has seen many things, absorbed many ideas, and speaks quite a number of languages. Another difference between the two nationalities here in Brooklyn is that John Chinaman is generally saturnine. If he laughs it is with a sardonic contraction of the muscles, while, on the other hand, the islander is lively, urbane, easy and gentlemanly.

The Japanese boarding house referred to is a model of neatness, not to say elegance, furnished mostly upon American models, but with enough of Japanese art and bric-a-brac to lend an air of grace and lightness to all the apartments, even to the kitchen, where the culinary utensils, arranged with neatness and order, shine in a way that would draw tears of envy to the eyes of the proverbially particular Dutch frau. Although the boarding house is not on show, it is always open for inspection, as well it might be, for there is nothing brighter or more orderly to be seen in the big city of Brooklyn. It is New Year's and N. Siato's charming wife is receiving callers after the European fashion. She has visitors from New York, Jersey City, Hoboken, and many other localities, and she entertains them all like a well bred woman. They taste her wines or gracefully decline; she does not press them, nor is there any need, as they know she means exactly what she says. Saike Lassor, a graduate of Heidelberg's famous university, is among the callers. Prof. Lasser, though still young, is recognized all over Europe as a scientist of high rank, especially well versed in theosophy. And here by the way may be the proper place to remark that the Japs have honest sounding names like our own, thus differing materially from the Chinese, with their monosyllabic Ah Sins and Sam Lees and Jim Jams.

All visitors are made welcome, Americans as well as Japanese. It is a real pleasure to enjoy the little attentions of the women toward the strangers, many of them merely visitors who in a crush assist the women of the house, and all of them refined, benevolent looking, bright eyed and beautiful.

"Won't you take off your cloak, sir? this weather is warm for New Year's.

"Please let me take your hat and cane; we want to keep you for a little while."

"Would monsieur like a glass of sherry or a cigar? You can smoke in yonder parlor. Mrs. Siato gives permission."

And so on, many of the boarders and guests speaking English, French, German, and at least one of them Italian. The Japanese tongue is dropped for the nonce, in deference to the visitors.

The women display exquisite taste in dress. There is nothing loud or outre in it, and rich furs are quite common.

In fine, the Japs are a great and progressive people, who are destined at no distant day to be the Yankees of Asia and the regenerators of a continent only a shade less dark than Africa.

THE LITTLE HOUSEHOLDER.

What a Landlord Did for a Deserving Young Tenant.

Oh, yes, I have all kinds of tenants, said a kind-faced old gentleman, but the one I like best is a child not more than 10 years of age. A few years ago I got a chance to buy a piece of land over on the west side, and did so. I noticed that there was an old coop of a house on it, but I paid no attention to it. After a while a man came to me, and wanted to know if I would rent it to him.

"What do you want it for?" said I.

"To live in," he replied.

"Well," I said, 'you can have it. Pay me what you think it is worth to you."

The first month he brought $2, and the second month a little boy, who said he was the man's son, came with $3. After that I saw the man once in a while, but in the course of time the boy paid the rent regularly—sometimes $2 and sometimes $3. One day I asked the boy what had become of his father.

"He's dead, sir," was the reply.

"Is that so?" said I. "How long since?"

"More'n a year," he answered.

I took his money, but I made up my mind that I would go and investigate; and the next day I drove over there. The old shed looked quite decent. I knocked at the door, and a little girl let me in. I asked for her mother. She said she did not have any.

"Where is she?" I asked.

"We do not know, sir. She went away after my father died, and we've never seen her since."

Just then a little girl about 3 years old came in, and I learned that these children had been keeping house together for a year and a half, the boy supporting his two little sisters by blacking boots and selling newspapers, and the elder girl managing the house and taking care of the baby. Well, I had my daughter call on them, and we kept an eye on them. I thought I would not disturb them while they were getting along. The next time the boy came with the rent I talked with him a little, and then I said:

"My boy, you are a hero. Keep on as you have begun, and you will never be sorry. Keep your little sisters together, and never leave them. Now look at this."

I showed him a ledger in which I had entered all the money he had paid me for rent, and I told him it was all his, with interest. "You keep right on," said I, "and I'll be your banker; and when this amounts to a little more I'll see that you get a house somewhere of your own." —Harper's Young People.

He Don't Want the Chance.

Mr. Wanamaker will have a chance to explain more about his Ordinary Business Prudence now that the Keystone investigating resolution has passed the house.—Philadelphia Times.

Is true of old coats, and mouths. When the former shows the first defect take a "stitch," and always keep the mouth right by using SOZODONT. It costs less for a new coat than a set of teeth. False teeth are not as pleasant as natural ones.

The old saying that "consumption can be cured if taken in time" was poor comfort. It seemed to invite a trial, but to anticipate failure. The other one, not so old, "consumption can be cured," is considered by many false. Both are true and not true; the first is prudent—one cannot begin too early. The means is careful living. Printing Annual Reports of the City of Toledo.

Sealed proposals will be received by the undersigned, up to 12 o'clock at noon of Monday,

THE 15TH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

for printing and binding the annual reports of the City of Toledo, Ohio, together with such special reports as may be required by the different officers.

All bids must be written with ink and the price of each item shall be written out in full as well as in figures. Each bid must contain the full name of every person interested in the same. All parties filing bids for the matters specified in this notice, must deposit with the city clerk on each bid the sum of one hundred dollars. All deposits to be in cash or certified check on a bank doing a regular banking business in the city of Toledo, and accompanied by an agreement signed by the bidder and two disinterested persons, guaranteeing that, if the bid is accepted, a contract will be entered into—otherwise the amount deposited to be forfeited to the city; and in case a contract is entered into, said deposit to remain until the first estimate of work done, (or double the amount of deposit,) is reported to the common council.

Bidders will be required to indorse their names on the outside of the envelope containing their proposal, and what the bid is for, the same to be filed with the city clerk. Bids not filed in accordance with the above requirements will be rejected.

Blank bids and envelopes can be obtained of the undersigned or of the city civil engineer.

Bidders must specify the time within which they will commence and complete the work after the acceptance of their bid.

Plans and specifications can be seen at the office of the city civil engineer.

The council reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

By order of the council.

City Auditor's Office.

Toledo, O., Jan. 12th, 1892.

The committee on ways and means of the common council of the city of Toledo, Ohio, and the undersigned, invite sealed proposals at this office to

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 15TH, 1892,

at 7 o'clock p. m. for the purchase of Street Improvement Bonds to the amount of Twenty-six Thousand Four Hundred and Thirty-four 78-100 ($26,434 78-100) Dollars, bearing date Jan. 25, 1892, and payable as follows: Two Thousand Five Hundred and Eighty-four 78-100 ($2,584 78-100) Dollars on Jan. 25, 1893, and Two Thousand Six Hundred and Fifty Dollars at the expiration of every six months thereafter, to and including July 25th, 1897, at the office of the city treasurer, with interest at the rate of five (5) per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually at the same place as evidenced by coupons to be attached to said bonds.

Said Improvement Bonds are issued pursuant to Section 2704 to 2707 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Ohio, and also under an ordinance of the common council of the City of Toledo, Ohio, "To provide for the issue of improvement bonds to pay the cost and expense of the improvement of Franklin avenue, from Bancroft street to Cherry street."—Passed Jan. 4th, 1892.

The denomination of these bonds; first payment one of $584.78 and four of $500; each payment thereafter four of $500 and one of $650.

The said bonds will be sold at not less than par and accrued interest, to the highest bidder.

Bidders will be required to state the gross amount they will pay for the bonds besides the accrued interest to date of delivery at Toledo, Ohio. They will also be required to deposit with each bid an amount of money or a certified check on some responsible bank equal to at least five (5) per centum of the par value of the bonds, so bid for, as a guarantee of good faith, and that the bid so made (if successful) will be fulfilled in accordance with the terms thereof, and the requirements of the law and ordinances. When the bids have been examined, and the award made according to law, all monies or checks deposited as guarantees shall be returned to the depositor, or held by the city auditor subject to his call except that of the successful bidder, which shall be held and considered, and accepted as part payment of the bonds so awarded or sold, but should there be any repudiation of the contract or agreement, or refusal to accept and pay for the bonds so sold, then and in that case the deposit shall be forfeited to the city of Toledo, and shall become the property of said city, in compensation for loss and expenses attending the sale of said bonds and as liquidated damages for repudiation of bid. And no bid will be received if not accompanied by money or check aforesaid.

The right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

Proposals should be addressed to the Auditor of the city of Toledo, Ohio," and be indorsed "Proposals for improvement bonds."

A GOOD FINANCIAL POLICY.

What An Interview Revealed.

Why Industrial Stocks Are the Safest Investments, and How It is They Can Be Secured at Bargains.

(N. Y. Recorder.)

I yesterday told you of an interview I had with one of the leading financiers of the day, and the interest he felt in industrial investments rather than in speculative ones. In the interview the gentleman gave me a hint which I have followed up successfully. He told me of a heavy institution, which is upon a very sound basis, where he thought a limited amount of stock could be secured at a great bargain. I was so impressed with the idea that I called upon the president of the company and told him I would like some information. He refused to give it or even be interviewed.

"But it has been asserted that some of your shares can be obtained at less than their market value."

"Who says so?" was the inquiry.

"I have reliable information to that effect," I declared.

"How absurd. No man sells anything at less than its price, unless there is a special reason for doing so."

"Well, is there not in your case?"

The gentleman smiled. "Yes, and no. We might part with some shares to certain persons, but not a dollar's worth to a speculator or a financier."

"Why, may I ask?"

"Because they could not benefit us."

"How can others benefit you then?"

"Easily. Suppose you own ten shares. Will you be interested in it? Will you be anxious to have it pay as large a dividend as possible? Will you talk it up among your friends? Will several thousand people doing this help the business? Will they not increase the dividends? Will it not make all the rest of the stock more valuable?"

I saw the force of the argument at once. The gentleman I talked with was Mr. H. H. Warner, president of the Safe Cure company, and after the ice was broken he talked freely.

"None of our stock is for sale, except in a limited amount, and to certain persons. It is too good. It is paying more than 15 per cent. dividends, and the introduction of our baking powder, which, as you are aware, is a very profitable business, will doubtless double our profits. I ask no one to buy our stock, although I stand ready to personally deposit collaterals to guarantee a dividend of not less than 10 per cent. per annum for the next five years."

"You have great faith in it."

"Faith. Why should I not have? If any of your friends wish to know more about it, let them write me, or call at 50 Broadway, and I will give them all the inside information they desire. I will show them just what we have and what it is doing. But don't have any speculators write me. We have no stock to sell to that class."

The frankness and outspoken manner of Mr. Warner impressed me. I could see that he was a man who dealt openly and meant every word he said. I am also thoroughly convinced that investments in sound industrial companies that are paying steady and large dividends are better than stocks, bonds, or other fluctuating securities. I am pretty well satisfied, too, that the public is finding this out and profiting by it, and I am glad that it is so.—Hamilton.

NEIGHBOR JONES.

I'm thinking, wife, of neighbor Jones, the man with a stalwart arm—
He lives in peace and plenty on a forty-acre farm;
When men are all around us, with hearts and hands a-sore,
Who own two-hundred acres, and still are wanting more,
He has a pretty little farm, a pretty little house;
He has a loving wife within, as quiet as a mouse;
His children play around the door, their father's heart to charm,
Looking just as neat and tidy as the tidy little farm.

No weeds are in the corn-field, no thistles in the oats;
The horses show good keeping by their fine and glossy coats;
The cows within the meadow, resting 'neath the beechen shade,
Learn all their gentle manners from a gentle milking maid.

Within the field on Saturday he leaves no cradled grain
To be gathered on the morrow, for fear of coming rain;
He lives in joy and gladness, and happy are his days;
He keeps his Sabbath holy; his children learn his ways.

He never had a law-suit to take him to the town,
For the very simple reason there are no fences down;
The bar-room in the village for him has not a charm;
I can always find my neighbor on his forty-acre farm.

His acres are so few that he plows them very deep;
'Tis his own hands that turn the sod; 'tis his own hands that reap;
He has a place for everything, and everything its place;
The sunshine smiles upon his fields, contentment on his face.

May we not learn a lesson, wife, from the prudent neighbor Jones,
And not sigh for what we haven't got—give vent to sighs and groans?
The rich aren't always happy, nor free from life's alarms;
But blest are those who live content, though small may be their farms.

But when later on he heard Surgeon in the Tabernacle sway the minds of 7,000 auditors who listened eagerly to the convincing logic and the irresistible eloquence of the preacher, Mr. Collier was converted heart and soul to a belief in his genius. Spurgeon never read his sermons and never used even a scrap of paper for notes.

IT IS EX-MARSHAL WADE.

Retires From His Engagement with Uncle Sam

After Four Years of Satisfactory Service—Complimented by the Department—Sketch of the Genial Ben.

To-day Mr. B. F. Wade, who has been United States marshal for the Northern District of Ohio, stepped down and out, and is succeeded by Hon. W. C. Haskell, of Ashtabula. Mr. Wade is now in Cleveland, settling up the affairs of the office, and will turn it over in the best possible shape.

Marshal Wade has filled the position for four years to the satisfaction of all concerned. He was appointed by President Cleveland to succeed Major Goodspeed, who was allowed to complete his term, and a like compliment was paid Mr. Wade, as he has served unmolested, though not without some murmur on the part of candidates, since President Harrison assumed control.

The marshal has received many compliments from the department of justice, as well as from the judges and other officials in the district, and it may not be out of place to give the following from Washington, which speaks for itself:

"Allow me to extend to you my thanks for the general character of your last account, of which this is a statement. In neatness it has hardly ever been surpassed, and in every instance the charges for mileage have been found correct. Your account is as correct and in as good appearance as any which has come to this office during this year."

This is rare commendation, since an official must do remarkably good work to draw forth praise from busy government bureaus.

Mr. Wade retires with the respect and confidence of all with whom he had relations, and he will have best wishes for continued success in all his undertakings.

Mr. Wade was born at Wilkesbarre, Pa., October 4, 1849, and received a common school education at Milroy, Pa. On leaving school he settled in Bucyrus, O., where he began to serve his time as a printer in the Forum office. Acquiring a knowledge of the business he removed to Toledo, and started in as a blank book manufacturer, printer and stationer, and his progress was so fast that enlargements were necessary continually until the present mammoth headquarters were obtained and the B. F. Wade company formed, of which "Ben" is the honored head.

In political life Mr. Wade has been uniformly successful. He was elected to the council from the strong republican First ward for two terms, and on the conclusion of the four years' service, in which he served his constituents with the strictest fidelity, he was elected sheriff of Lucas county by a handsome majority over his republican and independent competitors.

Gov. Hoadley appointed Mr. Wade as one of Ohio's commissioners to represent the state at the New Orleans exposition, and much of the credit for the excellent display made by the Buckeyes belongs to him. He has also had the honor of being appointed as one of the park commissioners for the city of Toledo by Gov. Campbell, an office which he is now filling.

Mr. Wade is married and has a happy family consisting of a wife and four children, two boys and two girls. He is a thirty-second degree Mason, being a member of Rubicon lodge, the Chapter, Council and Commandery. Not the least appreciated of his many honors is that of past exalted ruler of Toledo lodge of Elks, a body over which he presided and eagned his title.

A man of warm heart and generous impulses, Ben makes and retains friends, and it is probable no one in the city of Toledo not to compare further, enjoys a larger and more intimate acquaintance with people in public and private life. The Bee only expresses its own sentiment, as well as that of the people in general, when it states that Mr. Wade will carry with him in his personal and general relations the good will of all.

THE COAL COMBINATION.

Mr. Schenck Says it Will Not Raise Prices.

He Regards It as a Good Thing for the Public and the Companies, and Gives an Illustration.

The combination between the anthracite coal syndicates of the east has caused considerable commotion among those who handle the product for the eastern companies.

Speaking of the consolidation yesterday Mr. S. C. Schenck, who represents the Delaware & Lackawanna, said:

"In my opinion the consolidation will have a tendency to reduce rather than advance the price of coal. It will undoubtedly reduce operating expenses. For instance where three agents now represent three companies, say in Chicago or Buffalo, one will do. We all remember when the Standard Oil company secured practical control of the oil industry what a hue and cry was raised, and yet the result was that oil kept going lower and lower until we get it at one-third its former price. Then we who handled the oil used to buy five or ten barrels at a time, and we found that we lost from three to five gallons owing to evaporation. Then every little dealer had to have his profit, and in the end the consumer had to pay these extra expenses. So it has been with the coal business. The company which I represent has not entered the combination, but has guaranteed not to cut prices.

"I cannot see why the movement is not a good one both for the companies interested and for the public generally. With a bureau from which all the coal produced can be distributed the expenses can be greatly reduced and coal, therefore, sold cheaper accordingly."

HARRIS' HEAVEN.

Toledo Girls Induced to Visit the Prophet.

The God of the Golden Gate Seeks Whom He May Devour—His Agents Visit Toledo.

There is no doubt about it that Harris is after Toledo girls; at least Harris' right-hand man is after them, and Harris will get them if his agent is successful. This matter of enticing young girls away from their homes is becoming serious. Yesterday the report came from Detroit that five girls had mysteriously disappeared from that city. Just where they went to or how it was brought about was not clearly known. It is possible though that those who are working Detroit are from the same locality as strangers who have been interviewing working girls in Toledo for the past two weeks.

The matter was brought to the notice of the Bee by a well known society lady, who desires that her name should be not mentioned in the affair. She was seated before the counter in one of the leading dry goods stores, and while waiting for her goods overheard a portion of a subdued conversation going on between one of the young lady clerks and a long haired individual wearing a broad slouch hat.

The man was talking earnestly with the girl, and from what the lady could hear was offering the clerk inducements to go west with him where she could live an easy life. He spoke of diamonds and dresses and pleaded earnestly with the girl on the subject. He had evidently seen her on a previous occasion on the matter. The lady did not gather the girl's answer, but she seemed quite a willing listener.

These facts were related to a Bee, who investigated further, and found that the stranger had visited a number of the larger stores and had talked with numerous girls. The girl above mentioned was seen, but she was very reticent, and would acknowledge or deny nothing. From what could be learned about the man it looks as if he was from the Harris community.

But who is Harris? He's not Mohammed, but he's a prophet just the same, and a pretty successful one at that, considering the age in which he thrives and country of his abode. The fact is Harris is the Grand Mogul and the High Boss of a community in Southern California, a community that, although it dwells in a spot fit for the gods, is a hell hole on the face of the earth, inhabited by men, women, young girls, who are blindly led by the Prophet Harris. He fascinates, charms, holds and controls them by a wonderful power, magnetism, hypnotism, whatever it may be, and teaches them that by worshiping him they become holders of several seats in the front row of the great hereafter.

Harris has quite a number of girls in his clutches and wants more. He rules his followers as did the Veiled Prophet, and they think him every inch as great a personage. He lets them think so. He lives in a fine mansion, surrounded by beautiful grounds, broad drives, cultivated gardens, all the work of his band of dupes, who think that heaven recedes from the earth when Harris frowns and only returns when he smiles again or wills it. The Harris Community is located in lower California and is said to be a veritable paradise as far as soil, climate, etc., are concerned.

To such a place and to such a condition Harris' agent would drag Toledo girls or anybody else for that matter.

Prof. Fisk's subject, "Unconscious Influence." Calendars containing full order of service, notices for the week and other matter distributed at the door.

A BATTLE FOR HIS LIFE.

A Laborer Rescued from Under a Moving Train.

Lima, O., Feb. 13.—Richard Phalen, a Lake Erie & Western car repairer, had a frightful experience while at work underneath a car on a side track.

The car was one of several which a switch engine backed up to and coupled to pull out.

Phalen was lying on his back, working on the floor of the car, when it started, and with great presence of mind caught hold of one of the revolving axles, to which he held, and in the very jaws of death was dragged for about 100 feet, when a switchman discovered his predicament, stopped the train and rescued him just as his strength was about exhausted.

COMMITTED SUICIDE.

Philadelphia, Feb. 13.—A German named Vogels shot himself in the Broad street station of the Pennsylvania railroad this morning. He had just alighted from a train.

From papers found in his pocket it was learned that he had come here as a witness in a suit in which his family was interested. He died almost instantly.

FAILED TO CONVICT.

Pittsburg, Feb. 13.—The trial of ex-Mayor Pearson, of Allegheny City, on the charge of embezzlement of commitment fees ended abruptly at 11 o'clock this morning, the prosecution being unable to produce the necessary evidence to prove their case.

COSTIVENESS

If not relieved by judicious and timely treatment, is liable to result in chronic constipation. As an aperient that may be used with perfect safety and satisfaction, Ayer's Pills are unsurpassed. Unlike most cathartics, these pills, while they relax and cleanse, exert a tonic influence on the stomach, liver, and bowels, causing these organs to perform their functions with healthy regularity and comfort. Being purely vegetable and free from mineral drug of any kind, their use is not attended with injurious effects. Good for old and young of every climate, Ayer's Pills are everywhere the favorite. G. W. Bowman, 26 East Main street, Carlisle, Pa., says: "Having been subject, for years, to constipation, without being able to find much relief, I at last tried Ayer's Pills, and I deem it both a duty and a pleasure to testify that I have derived great benefit from their use. I would not willingly be without them."

Some Splendid Correspondence—Remember the "Prize Paper"—The Latch String Always Out at the Bee Household.

A VALENTINE.

I kiss this page I send her—I wonder will she know?
You lines of ink, be tender, you paper, whisper low;
No other eyes must see you, no other ears incline
To hear the song that doth belong to her, my Valentine.

If she's my lady truly she'll hide you in her breast,
Her thoughts will be unruly with exquisite unrest;
Indeed, unless she blushes before she reads a line,
Why, then the maid must be a jade, and not my Valentine.

Go tell her I would journey like some old armored Sir;
And joust in every tourney for honor and for Her;
But knights are out of fashion, so let this pen of mine
Become a dart to pierce the heart of Her, my Valentine.

The Red Rose.

I once was white as any snow that falls
From your calm skies, by strange, sad stars attended,
Until that day when he stood nude and splendid
Before the lion in the Roman stalls.
Then when the beast's loud roaring shook the walls,
Leaping into the amphitheater,
He turned him smiling from their coronals
And caught me, fragrant from the hand of her—
His mistress—kissed me, held me near his heart;
There was a sharp, swift glitter in the air;
A roar of voices. Well he played his part!
And I—prone with him, baffled, beaten there,
Caught on my petals, scented by the south,
The red rain dripping from the lion's mouth!

"The Most Delightful Creature."

In the current number of the Cosmopolitan Magazine are several chapters about Japanese women, written by their chief admirer, Sir Edwin Arnold. He calls them "semi-angelic," and says (replying to a criticism on his expressive qualifier) "I maintain that this daughter of the Land of the Rising Sun might pass into a higher state of existence with very few changes of nature, manners or heart and find herself quite at home." He believes that "the only people who do not appreciate Japanese women are Japanese men." In trying to define the secret charm, for she is not beautiful, judged by any accepted standard, he says, "She is, in point of fact, the most unselfish and most self-denying, the most dutiful and most patient woman in the world as well as the most pleasing."

As Sir Edwin has made a study of women as well as men, scenery and customs in most of the countries of the globe we must pay deferential respect to his conclusions. After the Japanese woman is proclaimed the most delightful and angelic creature in the world, we are told that her position in life is low to the point of servitude. She has no rights of person or property from birth to death. Her husband can desert her on the slightest pretense and take her children away with him. She is submissive her whole life long—first to her father and brothers, then to her husband, then to her own male children. Yet contradictory enough, among the better classes, the bridegroom takes the name of the bride when he enters her family. There is no demonstration of affection; the Japanese woman is an unimpassioned creature. Kissing and waltzing are unknown in Japan as indeed is any form of recreation or expression of regard involving both sexes and the least personal contact. Handshaking is looked upon, when witnessed in Europeans as low and vulgar. And as there is no such thing as marriage in Japan so far as binding the man is concerned, perhaps the fear of losing her husband is what renders the wife the "angel of submission and sweetness."

Recognizing all this injustice Mr. Arnold confesses that he trembles lest "woman's rights and civilization may take away more from this tranquil, delightful and contented creature than it can ever give to her." The same plea would answer for the Chinese woman swaying away into dreamland under the influence of hasheesh. She is not "delightful" to anybody but herself, but she is tranquil and happy. Sir Edwin is a very "delicious" poet, but he is not a progressive philosopher a ha'penny's worth. If women are only placid, tranquil, dutiful and delightful, what need of worrying about benighted brains and cheated souls.

Mothers and Daughters.

There have been some lessons in sad events recorded in the public press in the last two weeks that may well be pondered over by all women, and especially by mothers who have daughters nearing that border line where girlhood and womanhood meet. One of these is to be learned in the awful events connected with the Potts-Harris tragedy. A secret marriage; the crime of murdering an unborn child; then wife-murder; now death by decree of law for the survivor. The first an act of folly; the second a crime for which both were guilty; the third the desperate act of the depraved young husband to get away from it all. Surely none of these things would have happened, not even the first weak and foolish misstep would have been taken, had Helen Potts made a confidant of her loving mother, instead of telling all her affairs to another school-girl as foolish as herself.

The lesson of which is, "Mothers, win your daughter's confidence, and hold it close at every cost."

Then there is a tragedy among society people of Washington. A young and foolish girl induced to marry a dissipated young man because, forsooth, he threatened to shoot himself if she did not. After marriage the wife found, as she was sure to, that the young husband did not love her so desperately after all, since he would not, for her sake, give up his evil habits. She returned to her parents and he waylaid her and shot and killed her, killing also her brother who came to her defense.

The lesson of which is, "Girls, don't marry a young man from pity. If he threatens to shoot himself, tell him that is the very best use of himself he can make, and let him go. Don't spoil your own life under the mistaken impression you can do anything for a man who is coward enough to threaten you."

Remember

About the prize essay: the subject—"Partnership in the Family," (not more than 600 words) manuscript to be in by March 15. The prize is a beautiful volume "A Summer in Hawaii," by Helen Mather, and a second prize book if the "next best" contribution warrants it. A number of inquiries have been answered by letter. All members of the Bee Household may enter the contest, or any who desire to become members by making this their initial contribution.

For the benefit of those who worry lest marriage is a failure because of the "unsphering" of woman by allowing her a fair field for self support, it may be mentioned that, next to Germany, the "cradle of domesticity and wifely fidelity," the percentage of marriage in the United States is greater, according to the population, than in any other country. The figures are as follows:

Our marriage rate will not vary much from 8.70 in every 1,000. In Germany it is 8.85 in every 1,000; in Austria, 8.60; in Holland, 8.10; in France, 7.95; Denmark, 7.70; Switzerland, 7.65; Itlay, 7.60; Spain, 7.55; Great Britain, 7.63; Belgium, 7.30; Sweden, 6.80.

Still, with our boasted advantages of cheap and happy living, the marriage percentage should show even better than this. That the cause is not the one above referred to is made certain by carefully prepared comparisons between classes supposably representing the "strong-minded" and the "womanly" woman, as the terms of contradistinction are thoughtlessly applied. And, as has been said, one marriage of the higher type counts for more for the world than ten of the kind that begin with sensuous attraction alone and end precipitately in the divorce court.

The legislature of Kentucky is "listening respectfully" to a woman's-rights-in-property and school-suffrage argument. There was a little wincing when one speaker, a woman, charged that there were male school trustees who were unable to write their own names, and she thought the places of such as these could be filled by intelligent mothers of the state.

That's the trouble; when women get into politics they let out all the secrets.

Slightly Ironical.

New York city authorities have issued seventy licenses to women for selling beer and liquor. It is light and easy work, said to be very remunerative, and to bring big revenue to the government. Because of these things it may be well that women are taking a share in the business. Then, if a woman needs the cup of cheer that her husband finds necessary, it will be less disagreeable for her to buy and drink it in a nice quiet place kept by one of her own sex. No reasonable person would contend that the benefits of the traffic should be usurped by men alone, when it is so easy a way to make a living and there are so many women dependent on themselves for support.

GLADIOLUS.

North Woods Goes Journeying.

Dear Household—I did not expect when I last addressed the Household a good many months since that my next letter would be written from a point so many miles south, nevertheless I find myself at this writing in the extremely picturesque little city of Eureka Springs, Ark. Pleasure seeking? you ask. Yes, certainly, but seeking more especially for recruited health, and rest from business cares for my husband.

We left our northern home on the morning of the 3d inst., a gentle, soft snow falling all about us, and enveloping everything in one mantle of purity and whiteness.

The good-byes were soon said, and the train whirling us away, carrying the scene in our minds only as a memory. I will not weary you with an account of the long journey and the rests here and there. Suffice it to say we found ourselves on Saturday, the 6th inst., standing on the depot platform at this place, a dull, leaden sky overhead, a damp, chilly atmosphere about us, and in front the usual number of hack drivers clamoring for our patronage.

Ever since arriving here I have been trying to find words with which to describe this place, but they are not in my vocabulary. It is unlike any other place with which I am acquainted. The situation, among the peaks of the Ozark mountains, is one grand, confused mixture of towering hills, deep ravines and immense gorges. The condition of things is such it would be an utter impossibility to lay out the town in any systematic way, so wherever there is room to make a street along the mountain side, between the towering hills or down deep in the gorges, there you will find them, winding in and out, up and down. When the town was started about a dozen years ago, there was some difficulty in securing perfect titles to the land, consequently many cheap and unsightly buildings were erected, a large number of which still remain and give the place a kind of dilapidated look, which seems sadly out of harmony. Now, however, the buildings being erected are of a much better class. One very elegant hotel—the Crescent—said to have cost with its furnishings $250,000, is built of gray stone, inexhaustible quantities of which lie imbedded in all these hills and crop out on every side in all manner of forms and unlooked for places. There are also large quarries of a fine quality of red marble, which must some time be valuable.

At present there is but one line of railroad running in here, and that owned by private parties. The result is freights are so high that nothing can be shipped over the road to the advantage of any one except this private railroad company.

The natives tell us this is a wonderful country for fruit, and solemnly declare the strawberries grow as large as eggs, and have to be cut in quarters before you can get them into your mouth. I regret it is not the strawberry season, so I might verify the truth of the assertion. I have no reason to doubt, however, that it is an exceptionally fine fruit country. The houses are built right into the sides of the mountains. You can step at the back of the house from the third or fourth story out onto the ground, while at the front it looms up the full height; or if on the opposite side of the street the conditions are reversed.

But I must not fail to tell you of the wonderful springs and the wonderful cures wrought by the use of their waters. Their name is legion, and I can only specify a few. The Crescent, the Basin, the Magnetic, the Oil (which is said to restore the hair, and from which I expect great things for my bald-headed husband), the Bell (a spring up in the mountain, to which if you lend your ear attentively you hear as it were the tinkle of a bell away in the heart of the mountain), and many others. The use of these waters, together with the pure mountain air, cures almost every disease that flesh is heir to, even blindness, deafness and cancer. There is one notable exception—consumption. There is, however, not the least doubt of the value of the waters in kidney diseases of all kinds, and indeed many other ailments.

The town is something of a resort all the year round. People come from the north in the winter and the south in the summer. Chicago parties have bought a large tract of land within a couple of miles of the city, and are putting up a large sanitarium. The grounds are to be laid out in parks and villa lots, on the latter of which will probably be built handsome cottages. Somewhere on the grounds was once a small lake, fed by mountain springs, which wore itself an outlet in the rocks and thus emptied itself. Where this outlet is worn a dam is being built of cement and the red marble mentioned above. The bed of the lake is to be cleaned out down to the rock and a layer of clean sand put in, after which the lake will be allowed to reform, and will cover about ten acres.

One thing more I want to mention, though this letter is already long enough. They claim a population of six or seven thousand here, yet there are but two saloons in the place, and these have to pay the tremendous license of $1,800 per year each.

THE LECTURE.

Mrs. Jones gave a lecture,
Her husband attended,
Behind the curtain this lecture gave she,
Her language was forcible, quick comprehended,
Leaving no room for idle conjecture,
And admission was free.

No vision prophetic
Inspired this discourse,
Though she spoke of what had been and what sure must be.
She chided her helpmeet—adopted she this course,
Because he had purchased a worthless cosmetic
Of a fair peddler—see?

CHILDREN'S PLAY.

How the Little Ones Manage the Cowboy Business.

Reading the letter from "Auntie Toller" in paper of January 28 reminded me of a favorite play with my sister's little ones—a boy of eight, girls of six and four—a quick-witted little trio. In this stock country children catch the provincials, such as "swallow fork," and "under-bit the right," "under-slope the left," "grab the right," "under half crop the left," etc., and brands talked about at the table and everywhere else from morning until night, and from January till December. The little minds get filled to overflowing with the cattle business and it crops out in their plays.

They have a little basket with a mint of pretty stones and rocks in it—bits of crystalized gypsum, pieces of flint, some partially or wholly made into arrow heads, the work of departed Comanches), agates, etc. In sunny weather they follow their cattle business out into the yard, but on rainy or unpleasant days you may see them seated on the floor, tailor fashion with their little baskets of stones, some little distance apart—for extensive cow men like large ranges for their stock. If you pay attention and listen you will hear them saying to each other things like this (as they pour out the pile of stones on the carpet): "Now every man take his own bunch of cattle home as near as he can, to his own pasture, before we commence the spring round-up." This opening of business generally comes from Dana (the boy), as he seems always to be a sort of "general manager" besides "range boss." You will soon see three distinct piles of stones, each being pushed towards its own range, then work commences on each small range before the "general" work commences; the milk pen cows and calves are all put near the home ranche.

You would laugh to see this "home stock." "Brownie and her calf" consists of a medium-sized brown stone and a little brown one just as near alike as possible; "Speckle and her calf" have a peculiar similarity in coloring, and so on, with "Tar Bucket" (black), "Whitey," "Annie Rooney" (a roan cow), "Daisy," "Jersey," "Bob Tail," "Long Legs," "Reddy," "Dollie," "Baldy," and many more, and the funny part to me is, they know these stones, big and little, as well as we know the milk pen stock they are named for, can pick them out of the whole pile, in which there must be hundreds. They have certain stones for their saddle horses just like cowboys, ten or sometimes more apiece, and they "swop" horses. Louie, the eldest girl, seems to make a specialty of keeping good "cutting horses," and she brags on them, too. You can hear her say, "A steer never gets back when I cut him out on "Sorrel." Then it is time for Georgie, the younger girl, to say, "He can't run faster that my 'Prince' (named in honor of her mamma's little saddle horse). But here comes the range boss, Dana. "Round up your horses; get them in a bunch back on the 'divide.' We want to 'round' here on this 'flat' this morning; they are gone on the circle now" (bringing in the range cattle) So the little girls "whoop up" their ponies, "Gus," "Sorrel," "Swipes," "Monk," "Prince," "Turner," "Lucy," "George," "Billy," "Rooster," "Gray," etc., take them back a-ways on the "divide" as directed and the cattle (stones) commence pouring in from all directions to the "round-up." Business is brisk for a while; you can hear them cutting out all the brands in the country. The rocking chair cattle (branded with a rocking chair) are cut into the bunch going south; the Z—Z (Z bar Z) cattle into that going north, and so on with A—C's, H—Y's, 1—T's, X, Y, Z's, and so forth. They argue over earmarks and old brands, change horses, drive their "cuts" to the "day herd" and go and eat dinner at "the wagon," and fix to either "round" again in the afternoon or "rope" (lasso) calves and brand them, eat supper again at the "wagon," "catch out" "night horses" to stand guard on when their turn comes, make a "mimic" camp fire and "spread" or "make down" their beds around it, put their "six-shooters" under their heads and are soon apparently asleep.

What an imagination the Lord blesses children with: that basket of pretty rocks is an endless source of amusement. I have often been an unobserved observer of their "cow business." They have it to perfection; are so earnest over it. I have laughed until my sides ached and the tears rolled down my cheeks to hear Louie trade horses, and insist on having a steer yearling thrown in to boot, because the horse she was trading for was nothing to be compared to the horse she was trading off. The latter, she would declare, was a fine cow horse, could turn and dodge a steer or cow "quick as a cat," never fall or stumble when running, while the other which he is to be exchanged for "is old, can't see good in the night," "gives out in the hind shoulder," etc., and she would intimate in a persuasive tone that she was only trading to accommodate, "because you want him so bad." So, if the steer yearling was thrown in, the play went on uninterrupted, till Georgie would exclaim "It's time to "yank" (throw) calves and brand them. They build corrals, chutes, "ride" wire fences to keep back the "drift," pull cattle out of the bog when the "heel flies," run them in the water in the spring, and no branch of the business gets slighted by these busy little folks. Yours,

IMOGEN.

WOMEN DRUGGISTS.

There are quite a number of women engaged in the retail drug business in the United States; many of them as proprietors, others as clerks. Some of them have regularly taken and satisfactorily passed through the courses of study prescribed by our colleges of pharmacy, and fulfilled all legal obligations by registering before state boards of pharmacy. Others, in some states, received registration as pharmacists upon passage of the pharmacy law from the fact that they had been in business a sufficient number of years prior to the enactment to permit of this registration. There have been numerous arguments for and against the advisability of women entering this profession, but, as a rule, the objections are of a narrow nature and based upon one-sided and bigoted prejudice. There is no inherent reason for denying to women the right to enter pharmacy. She is neat, careful and ambitious, as a rule, when she undertakes the acquisition of a professional training. She could, and does, make an excellent prescription clerk, and behind the sales counter is without reproach. Some object to her presence in the drug store, alleging that the public will not have sufficient confidence in a woman druggist to place in her hands prescriptions for potent remedies for the treatment of serious affections, and it is argued that the female portion of the community will not patronize the drug store in which a woman is placed to wait upon them. We say that, all other things being equal, sex should be no bar to woman's entrance into the profession, and in fact she often has many things in her favor to place her above the standard of some male drug clerks. She does not wish so many nights off, is not dissipated, is more tractable, and in other particulars is perhaps superior to her brother clerk.—Pharmaceutical Era.

In Books.

Some one has compared the books of to-day with the Nuremburg boxes which one opens expecting to find a treasure within, but finds a box within a box and a box in that and so box within box until in a very small one a little treasure is found; so books are made, one from another, and that from a still earlier one until way back through many years is found a small book with a little of the precious truth in it, as penetrating as the most subtile perfume. The truth is not changed, the fancies and speculations woven about it are not changed, only colored to suit the age that call them forth.

See the harlequin assemblage brought forth for our amusement, the witchcraft of old and the science of the past trapped out in the terms of the day, nothing so grave or so gay or so incredible but it must serve its turn. Are childish fancies any more fantastic than those of the mature mind? A certain query that troubled me long ago was recalled by a little tale from the German recently published, who was to bury the last man. I never thought of asking any one about the matter, but was trying to decide the question in my child mind, when I heard a neighbor telling of a sexton who had dropped dead in a grave he had dug. That solved the question for me and I disposed of my last man in the same manner.

This mature German treats a very similar subject in a vastly more scientific though more cheerful way. By the exhaustion of the internal fires and cooling of the sun's rays through some nine millions of years, life has been gradually frozen out and only one family remains. Shut in their hut by ice and snow, they are at last reduced to the husband and wife, who, locked in each other's embrace, are wafted away to a land of sun and joy.

In a book written very early in the fifties its writer grows prophetic and sees a time when the earth will have exhausted its supplies of fuel and deprived of all natural heat the inhabitants will employ water or hydrogen (he makes no difference in the terms) gas for that purpose. And to overcome the impossibility of warming "all out doors" and prevent the evaporation of the water supply he would turn the earth into a vast conservatory, the materials for which would be furnished by the sands of the sea and the minerals in the earth. Another writer declares the moon to be a shadow, not a substance; an electric photograph of a lost world, whose influence on the tides is magnetic.

With the wealth of books at present I wonder how any one can live without knowing at least a few or can mistake the sounding brass for the true metal. There is so much carelessness usually in the selection of children's books that the list of good healthy ones for children and young people given in the January number of the Ladies' Home Journal may be of much benefit to those who direct a child's reading or wish to give presents of books. In childhood a taste for literature of a pure tone and high character may be most easily formed. Train up a child in the way he should read and when he is old he will not read trash.

Over Our Teacups.

The perfect way to brew tea would seem to be the Chinese way, since the celestial beverage is of their institution. Yet it appears we go exactly contrariwise in preparing our cheering cups. According to a lately-returned traveler, this is what we should do, to have a perfect cup of tea:

Take a level teaspoonful of tea for each cup; have a teakettle filled with the same number of cups of boiling water. Pour all the water into the teapo in which the tea is to be brewed, and which has been previously warmed gently, so that the temperature of the boiling water shall not be lowered when it is poured into the teapot.

Now, stir down into the boiling water all the tea. When it is thoroughly mixed with the water, let the infusion stand for four minutes, then pour it. This process reverses the one customary with us, which is to pour the water on the tea.

It is said no person who has learned to make tea this way ever departs from it, and that those who drink it will not have it spoiled by any kind of seasoning, not even lemon, to illustrate which the traveler tells this story:

"Won't you try a little lemon in your tea, just for once?" pleaded the young hostess to the traveler who taught her to brew her tea in the perfect way.

"Madam," he answered, with as much indignation in his tone as his gentle courtesy would permit, "my tea drinking is a rite, not an experiment."

In Chicago and in Indianapolis, perhaps in other cities, the various women's clubs have organized a local council which is composed of delegates from the various societies. Its purpose is to consider and act upon anything brought before the council from the club or society through its delegate. As almost all these clubs have some useful work in hand, to bring to it the support of the other clubs is to insure success. So all further in turn the good work of each. Why should not Toledo, with its many clubs, have such a council?

The Indianapolis News asks a question the Bee would like some one to stand up and answer, if there is an answer. Here it is:

How does it happen that the action of the various college men in adopting caps and gowns is met by a dead silence on the part of the newspapers, while the proposition of a few women to wear boots and a divided skirt on rainy days has called out a loud protest from Maine to California?

Sunshine in Old Age.

Deprived as they are of so many former privileges; obliged to sit with folded hands; is it any wonder time hangs heavily with the worn and weary ones who are "only waiting" for the glad summons? You may not know how a kind deed or word makes the old heart stronger, the eye kindle with love, the lips murmur "God bless you," or how sensitive those in the decline of life are to the cold indifference of the young.

These thoughts came to me yesterday as I was sitting idle, weak and dispirited, not from age exactly, but its twin sister, infirmity, when the door opened and in came my darling grandchild with a basket of goodies. "I have something for you, grandma." My heart bounded with joy to see the delight in her eye at making grandma happy.

I remember of taking a choice basket of refreshments—sent by my children to their grandmother. The tears filled the old lady's eyes as she remarked, "I can't eat one of them, but you don't know how happy it makes me to know the girls are mindful of me."

My dear young friends you may never know until you too arrive at the age when the "grasshopper is a burden" the joy you have afforded the tired heart by your acts of kindness and gentleness. Surely it will be a pleasant spot on memory's page to turn to in after years. Verily you will have your reward.

Ah! who shall tell of the inestimable value of the kiss of our martyred president, Garfield, on his aged mother's cheek, inauguration day. I am sure many poor mothers of our land whose lives heretofore were unused to such tokens of affection have received added kindness prompted by the example set by President Garfield.

Lives of great men oft remind us
We can make our lives sublime,
And departing leave behind us
Footprints in the sands of time.

Adrian, Mich. H. A. T.

The Struggle for Beauty.

Can you imagine a woman seated on her chair at home and poking one cheek with one finger by the hour day after day? Can you easily picture to yourself another woman working her lower jaw incessantly and most vigorously an hour or two every day for a month? Yet this is done by our sisters and our cousins and our aunts all over town. The reason they do this is that they are not satisfied with their faces. This one has a depression in her cheek, and that is what she is poking with her finger. She expects so to strengthen the muscles in her cheek as to make it full and plump and round, as it ought to be, and used to be in her babyhood. The other one is working her lower jaw in order to develope the lower part of her face, which she thinks is not round and curving enough; or, if she is married, she wants her face to look as well as the plumpest among her lady friends. There is a little book in current use which gives the ladies the necessary instructions for poking this part of the face and working the other, and it is this little book that is giving our women this novel employment.

What Ailed Her.

A well-known woman lecturer went to a well-known New York physician, also a woman, some few months ago, to ask why she was ill. The doctor had her take off bonnet, dress, shoes, every bit of her apparel, and put them on the scales. The worn-out lecturer had walked into the physician's office carrying in underwear and outerwear, in heavy dragging skirts and cloaks, about thirty pounds. Women are the stronger half of creation or they would never attempt any business beyond that of carrying their attire.

To Clean Egg-Stained Silver.

In washing forks, spoons or cups which have been employed in eating eggs, it is best to make an application of cold water with a mop before plunging them into the boiling suds. Hot water cooks the egg and thus renders it more difficult to remove. Common table salt will remove egg tarnish from silver.

Alabama at Wheeler's Opera House Monday.

Evangeline to Give a Week of Light Opera at the People's—Blue Jeans—General Dramatic Notes.

"Alabama," the new American drama, by Augustus Thomas, is the shining light in next week's dramatic firmament, and will be presented at Wheeler's Monday evening. "Alabama" is the most American, hence the most popular play ever written. It borrows absolutely nothing from any foreign source. The author has selected his territory, his theme and his topics from his own country and from the south.

Mr. Thomas has infused into his play the stagnation of southern life and enterprise, and into his characters foibles peculiarly southern. The pomposity and ostentatious ceremony of the man in so odd keeping with their shattered fortunes, is shown without offense. Humor and pathos are happily and easily blended without the sudden transitions used merely for theatric effects. The real merit of the work lies in its strong characterization, the telling effects produced without violence of action and the terse, bright and natural dialogue.

The story of Mr. Thomas' play is quiet and unpretentious. There is an evil one (nearly a villian, but he does not wear kid gloves,) who tries to ruin Mrs. Page, a widow, and her son by disputing the validity of the lady's marriage. The man who has the proofs is absent, and when he returns to the south, to his southern home, after a long sojourn in the north, he is changed, and nobody knows him. He is Harry Preston, and he himself once loved Mrs. Page. His father, the old colonel, had forbidden the marriage. The evil one is foiled very cleverly by Preston, who is then assigned to the widow. There are several other characters all cleverly introduced—not one is dragged in. The story is interesting, but, as I said, it is in perfect formation of his characters that Mr. Thomas has excelled.

"Blue Jeans."

The third in the series of great Metropolitan attractions presented at this house will be one of the most important theatrical entertainments seen here in a long time. When Joseph Arthur completed his labors on the manuscript of "Blue Jeans," less than a year ago, Manager J. Wesley Rosenquest, of the Fourteenth Street theater, New York, announced the now famous production for a limited period of presentation. The success of a former play of this same author's, "The Still Alarm," was still fresh in the minds of a fair portion of the theater going public of the metropolis and curiosity was rife as to the new venture to the pioneer of realistic school in native play making.

"Blue Jeans" was a success from the start. From the rise of the curtain, revealing the homestead of homely cobbler, Jacob Tuterwiler, in the sparsely settled "Blue Jean Deestrict" of Rising Sun, Ind., a remote hamlet of the Hoosier state, the interest was enlisted and subsequently chained to the enactment of the later episodes in Perry Bascom's orchard, the dining room of the young mill owner's house and the exterior and interior of the saw mill. It is conceded that the mill incident is the most sensational bit of intense realism ever vouchsafed the stage of this or any other country. So thrilling is this materialistic introduction that it is a common occurrence to see the audience rise enmass at its close and cheer.

Nearly every one interested in theatricals and their progress is acquainted with the result of Manager Rosenquest's enterprise. Instead of its originally allotted period of a month's stay, the play held the stage of the Fourteenth Street theater for more than half a year, and at no time during that period was it possible to secure places unless by application weeks in advance. After 200 performances, "Blue Jeans" was withdrawn because is is found absolutely impossible to continue it. The production to be given here is guaranteed to be the same in every detail as the original New York production. At Wheeler's Friday and Saturday and Saturday matinee, February 19 and 20.

Evangeline.

Monday night at the People's theater the famous comic opera extravaganza, Evangeline, will unfold its beauties, and continue throughout the week. One can speak of successes, of long runs, of great earnings qualified and unqualified, but a majority of them are creatures of today, they are loudly heralded, they flitter and glitter, and then quickly pass into oblivion. Not so with Evangeline, with its wealth of captivating music, magnificent scenery and costumes, brimful of fun pure and legitimate. Not a burlesque, but partaking as it does of the comic opera and extravaganza, it is really a brilliant and cleverly written satire on Longfellow's beautiful poem, Arcadia, with music by that great original genius, E. E. Rice.

The scene opens in Arcadia, by the sea, where the different characters and situations are introduced: the man-of-war in the harbor and capture of the seamen deserters, the lone fisherman and the whale, the heifer dance, and the bathers. The entire party are then quickly transported to the diamond fields of Africa, where they pass through a variety of amusing situations and finally bring up in Arizona, where reconciliations take place and the play ends. No one ever saw Evangeline but who laughed, and the more absurd the situation, the more cause for merriment. Mr. J. S. Maffit, the Lone Fisherman, who created the part 17 years ago, still plays the same character, and portrays the best in the pantomimic art that has been seen on the American stage. Geo. A. Schiller plays Le Blanc, the character that introduced such artists to the public as Henry Dixey, Sol Smith Russell, W. H. Crane, Richard Golden and Nat Goodwin.

Miss Sadie Stephens is still the handsome and dashing young Gabriel, while the pretty demure and confiding Evangeline is played by Miss Ruth Davenport, who charms all by her sweet voice and sympathetic ways.

Richard Harlow as Catherin is the best ever seen in this part, though comparatively a novice, he at once falls in favor of the audience; nature has especially endowed him for this imporant part. Capt. Dietrich, Hans Wagner and the policeman are in excellent hands. E. S. Tarr still plays Benedict and the African Potentate.

Mr. C. H. Smith, the efficient manager, is fortunate to be surrounded by so excellent a cast. The company come direct from a series of recent successes in New York, Buffalo and Detroit.

The Middleman.

Mr. E. S. Williard will present Henry Arthur Jones' play, The Middleman, at Wheeler's opera house February 23 and 24.

L. Clarke Davis in the Century Magazine speaks of Williard as follows:

"But Mr. Jones' play, admirable as it is, would not attract and hold us as it does were it not for the excellent acting of it. It is only just to the actor, Mr. E. S. Williard, to say that his genius outruns that of the author. The art of the player is of more original, finer, subtler stuff than that of the playwright; it has the power to evoke sentiments and passions from the vasty deep of the entranced fancy, of which the author neither schemed nor dreamed; it creates images of wondrous power and beauty, which become forever fixed upon the mind of the spectator sitting at the play."

Dramatic Notes.

The theaters in London regularly employ over 12,000 people.

The Plunger has had a fairly successful week at the People's, and the Byrons have made many new friends.

Manager Hill has bought a farce-comedy called The Kickers from Lewis Rosen. It is said to be a satire on national politics.

John Mason has become quite famous as a writer of topical verses, and keeps Digby Bell supplied with the latest topics for his songs.

When Mrs. Leslie Carter gets through with Miss Helyett she will use a romantic-emotional play which David Belasco is writing for her.

Hundreds of people were turned away last week from the Tremont theater, Boston, where the Bostonians were singing. This opera troupe has been a money-maker this season from the start.

The magnificent Royal English opera house seems to be a white elephant on D'Oyly Carte's hands. He wishes to lease it, but the season in London has been so disastrous that would-be tenants are scarce.

Realism has gone to its limit in Rome, where Traversi's Rozeno so shocked the public by its unwholesome plot and indecent language that it was hissed. Changes in the dialogue were made after the first night, but without effect.

Margaret Mather has laid Joan of Arc on the shelf, not because it was unsuccessful, but because it was of too exacting a nature. She held to the tragedy until her physicians ordered her to stop at once or be forced to cancel her season.

A man is the understudy for Kate Davis, the droll commedienne who plays the fiery Spanish matron in Miss Helyett. He is Gilbert Sarony, whose regular part is the agile French dancing master. Sarony used to be very funny in eccentric female impersonations in variety theaters.

The Askin-Rork Comic Opera company will inaugurate the second New York season at Palmer's theater early in April with the original comic opera called Jupiter. The book is by Harry B. Smith, and the music by Julian Edwards, the musical director of the company. The opera is in two acts and three scenes. The company will be virtually the same as now presenting the Tar and Tartar, Digby Bell playing the title role.

It is finally settled that Mrs. Bernard Beere is to come to America next season and make a tour of all the principal cities. Marcus R. Mayer is the manager who has been fortunate enough to secure this artist, who has steadfastly refused the most flattering offers from Henry E. Abbey and dierent managers for several years. Mrs. Beere is popularly known as the Bernhardt of the English stage. She is now on her way to Australia to fulfill a contract in that country previous to her appearance here.

GOOD IDEAS.

Extracted from Governor Boies' Last Inaugural Address.

I cannot avoid the conclusion that we legislate too much.

There are certain natural rights which every man possesses, and certain obligations which he as a member of society owes to the public.

It is clearly within the province of the legislature to enact laws for the protection of the former and the enforcement of the latter.

Beyond this in statutes that are designed to regulate the conduct of men it is, I believe, generally unwise to go.

It is safe to say the wisdom of man has never yet been sufficient to enable him to devise practicable means for the enforcement of strictly moral obligations.

So long as the conduct of men is restrained within limits that admit of no encroachment upon the rights of others it should be left to the regulation of their own consciences and to the control of laws that emanate from a wisdom superior to our own.

But under such a definition the field of legitimate legislative action is not restricted within narrow bounds.

To be able to guard with jealous care the rights of one class without encroaching upon those of another requires the exercise of wisdom not always vouchsafed to man.

To judge correctly between the natural rights of the citizen and his obligations as such to that organized society that protects him in these demands a comprehension of each more accurate than mortals always possess.

AFTER THE GRIP

Convalescence is very slow, and to recover the health-tone a good tonic is absolutely necessary. Hood's Sarsaparilla has been used with wonderful success as a building-up medicine and blood purifier after attacks of the Grip, after Typhoid Fever, Scarlet Fever, diphtheria, Pneumonia or other prostrating diseases. It possesses just the building-up effect so much needed; it vitalizes and enriches the thin and impoverished blood, and it invigorates the kidneys and stimulates the liver so that they resume regular and healthy action. Thousands of people have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla as a preventive of the Grip with success. Thousands have found in it restoration to health and strength after this dreaded complaint. For instance, Mr. Jacob Knapp, of Tipton, Iowa, a well-known business man, says he had the Grip twice, leaving him very weak and with a bad cough. Hood's Sarsaparilla gave him a splendid appetite, made him feel strong and as well as ever.

HEBREW MERCHANTS.

In Their Relation to the Great Metropolitan City.

Among the most striking of the facts which Richard Wheatley relates in his Century article on "The Jews in New York" are somestatistics of their business importance. The Hebrew population of about 250,000 give the following results:

"Dry and fancy goods absorb the energies of 514 firms, the aggregate rating of whose capital is $58,000,000. Names of proprietors are as familiar in the mouth as household words to multitudes of shoppers.

"In the manufacture and sale of clothing—Mr. Max Cohen, editor of the American Hebrew, being the authority—there are 264 firms with $24,000,000 capital; 31 firms, with over $7,000,000 invested in business, are in the cloth trades; 169 firms, with $12,000,000 invested, make and sell hats and gentlemen's furnishing goods. Tobacco and smokers' articles engaged the attention of 165 firms possessed of $15,500,000 capital in 1890, while 94 firms, with $10,000,000 capital, are pre-eminent in the wine and liquor trade. Jewelry, precious stones, and optical goods employ the activities of 133 firms and the power of $8,500,000. Leather findings and hides are but little less acceptable objects of commerce, judging from the 83 firms with nearly $7,000,000 of capital that deal in them. So it is with paints and glass, bought and sold by 38 firms, with a capital of nearly $6,000,000. Furniture, bedding, and upholstery statistics furnish the names of 37 firms whose $2,750,000 are utilized in the production and sale of these articles. Seventy-four persons or firms have invested about $5,000,000 in the meat business, and 416 about $37,500,000 in miscellaneous trades. The average rating of capital controlled by these 2,018 merchants is $207,388,000.

"In no city have the Jews been more successful as traders than in New York. Of the 400 buildings on Broadway from Canal street to Union Square the occupants of almost all are Hebrews, over 1,000 wholesale firms out of a total of 1,200 being of that race. Hebrew firms also predominate on the streets contiguous to Broadway within the territory named. Nor eleswhere have they been more successful, on the whole, as bankers and financiers. The 35 firms whose average rating in 1890 was over $13,000,000, but whose available capital is, in all probability $100,000,000 or more, include the names of Seligman, Hallgarten, Wormser, Lazard, Scholle, Kuhn, Loeb, Schiff, Ickelheimer, Speyer, Schafer, and many others, some of whom are more conspicuous for philanthropy and patriotism than for wealth.

"Hodings or real estate by the Jews in New York are estimated at from $150,000,00 to $200,000,000, and five-eighths of the transfers are said to be for their account."

QUELLING A MUTINY.

Captain Trask, One of the Last of the Old Sea Kings.

Take, for instance, a commander like Capt. Benjamin I. H. Trask, master successively of the Virginia, Yazoo, Garrick, Jamestown, Switzerland, Saratoga, Wm. F. Stover and Hamilton Fish, for whom, when he died, on the 23d of December, 1871, the flags on the shipping in the harbor were at half-mast. "No braver or better man," said one of the newspapers, "ever commanded an American ship. He was about the last of the old sea-kings of the past." This was the kind of man he was: His good ship the Saratoga was about to leave Havre for New York at the time when, in honor of the birth of the Prince Imperial (son of Eugenie and Louis Napoleon), many convicts had been liberated from prison. Some of these rascals—the ugliest set of mortals he had ever associated with—shipped as sailors on board his vessel, their character and antecedents, of course, quite unknown to the captain. The first day out the new crew were very troublesome, owing in part, doubtless, to the absence of the mate, who was ill in bed, and who died after a few hours. Suddenly the second mate (now captain) G. D. S. Trask, son of the commander, heard his father call out, "Take hold of the wheel," and going forward saw him holding a sailor at arm's length. The mutineer was soon lodged in the cockpit; but all hands, the watch below and the watch on deck, came aft, as if obeying a signal, with threatening faces and clinched fists. The captain, methodical and cool, ordered his son to run a line across the deck, between him and the rebellious crew, and to arm the steward and the third mate.

"Now go forward and get to work," he said to the gang, who immediately made a demonstration to break the line. "The first man who passes that rope," added the captain, drawing his pistol, "I will shoot. I am going to call you one by one; if two come at a time, I will shoot both."

The first to come forward was a big fellow in a red shirt. He had hesitated to advance when called; but the "I will give you one more invitation, sir," of the captain furnished him with the requisite resolution. So large were his wrists that ordinary shackles were too small to go around them, and ankle shackles took their place. Escorted by the second and third mates to the cabin, he was made to lie flat on his stomach while staples were driven through the chains of his handcuffs into the floor to pin him down. After 18 of the mutineers had been similarly treated, the captain himself withdrew to the cabin and lay on a sofa, telling the second mate to wake him in an hour. The next minute he was fast asleep, with the stapled ruffians around him.—Harper's for February.

NAVASSA.

The little Island of Navassa, which lies in the Caribbean Sea, about thirty miles from Hayti, is of small account in itself and geographically considered; which is probably the reason why its acquisition as part of the United States territory by the mere act of presidential recognition, as very briefly announced in one of President Hayes' messages, attracted little public attention at the time. Latterly the island has been chiefly notable as the scene of a riotous outbreak by laborers in 1889. Commercially its only value is in its rich phosphate deposit. In a diplomatic sense, however, its acquisition may easily prove to have been an event of utmost importance, since it has given the United States a foothold in the West Indies—a most desirable section of the globe, at times, in which to have a stopping place.

AGENTS WANTED.

A WORD TO THE WISE.

Worth Untold Gold to You, Perhaps

Now is the season of pains and aches of rheumatism and neuralgia as Spring approaches. Yet it is absurd and unnecessary to suffer. Speaking on this subject, the well-known Mr. James Brown of 27 Market street, New York city, said: "I had neuralgia and rheumatism terribly in my back and side. So badly did I suffer that I was unable to attend to my business for three years before I came across the right remedy to cure me. The remedy is Dr. Greene's Nervura, and I have been perfectly and completely cured by this wonderful medicine."

"I had a pain in my right side for four months," said Mrs. J. T. Cummings of 1303 Lorain street, Cleveland, Ohio, "and was nervous, and could not sleep nights. I got no relief until I took Dr. Greene's Nervura. The pain has left me entirely, and now I sleep much better."

"I suffered for many years with a terrible neuralgia in my head and neck," said Alonzo Pachin, Esq., of Boiceville, New York, "and oh, dear, how it pained me all through. I took Dr. Greene's Nervura, and IT CURED ME COMPLETELY OF THE FEARFUL PAIN. I think Dr. Greene's Nervura is the very best medicine I ever saw used."

Everyone who has used it speaks the same regarding it. It is purely vegetable and harmless, and can be obtained of your druggist for $1.

Dr. Greene, the successful specialist, in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases, 35 W. 14th street, New York, can be consulted free, personally or by letter. Call or write to him about your case or send for symptom blank to fill out, and a letter fully explaining your disease, giving advice, etc., will be returned free.

TUTT'S Tiny Liver Pills as an anti-bilious and anti-malarial remedy are wonderful in their effects in freeing the system of biliousness and malaria. It is a seamless shoe, with no tacks or wax thread to hurt the feet; made of the best fine calf, stylish and easy, and because we make more shoes of this grade than any other manufacturer, it equals hand-sewed shoes costing from $4.00 to $5.00.
$5.00 Genuine Hand-sewed, the finest calf shoe ever offered for $5.00; equals French imported shoes which cost from $8.00 to $12.00.
$4.00 Hand-Sewed Welt Shoe, fine calf, stylish, comfortable and durable. The best shoe ever offered at this price; same grade as custom-made shoes costing from $6.00 to $9.00.
$3.50 Police Shoe; Farmers, Railroad Men and Letter Carriers all wear them; fine calf, seamless, smooth inside, heavy three soles, extension edge. One pair will wear a year.
$2.50 fine calf; no better shoe ever offered at this price; one trial will convince those who want a shoe for comfort and service.
$2.25 and $2.00 Workingman's shoes are very strong and durable. Those who have given them a trial will wear no other make.
Boys' $2.00 and $1.75 school shoes are worn by the boys everywhere; they sell on their merits, as the increasing sales show.
Ladies $3.00 Hand-sewed shoe, best Dongola, very stylish; equals French imported shoes costing from $4.00 to $6.00.
Ladies' 2.50, $2.00 and $1.75 shoe for Misses are the best fine Dongola. Stylish and durable.

GOOD FOR THE HEALTH.

A famous doctor says: "Eat a good bowl of mush and milk for your breakfast, and you will not need any medicine. Indian corn contains a large amount of nitrogen, its qualities anti-constipating, and is easily assimilated. It is cheap and has great nutritive properties. A course of Indian meal in the shape of johnny-cake, hoe-cake, corn or pone bread and mush, relieved by copious draughts of pure cow's milk, to which, if inclined to dyspepsia, a little lime water may be added, will make life, now a burden, well worth the living, and you need no other treatment to correct your nervousness, brighten your vision, and give you sweet and peaceful sleep."

A TRUTH FROM "TRUTH."

The New York Central is really first-class in all its appointments. Think of it, it has four tracks laid with the heaviest of steel rails in the most substantial manner, and when you are sleeping or lounging around in one of their superb Wagner cars, and flying along at the rate of nearly a mile a minute, as some of their fast expresses do, you will hardly realize that you are moving, so excellent is the permanent way. A short time ago a special train made the run from New York to Buffalo at the rate of a mile a minute the entire distance.

SOME SIMPLE REMEDIES.

To Cure Pessimism.—Believe every man as big a knave as yourself and the world won't look so bad after all.

To Cure Unpopularity.—Spend every cent you make on your friends and borrow more from your father. Never give advice and listen to every fool's prating.

To Cure Melancholy.—Go to see an amateur theatrical company interpret a tragedy. One dose is sufficient. Too much of this medicine will have a counter effect and will induce suicide.

To Cure a Cold.—Take four parts of the advice of one person, with three parts of the advice of 50 others; mix well and swallow at every hour in the day. Make it convenient to die on Thursday so you can be buried before washday.—Puck.

Will be found an excellent remedy for sick headache. Carter's Little Liver Pills. Thousands of letters from people who have used them prove this fact. Try them.

HOW HE SAVED MONEY.

Mathias Blau, of 2207 Chestnut Street, Toledo, Relates a Strange Experience.

After Years of Suffering He Was Restored to Health and Happiness, and Now Lives in His Own Cosy Cottage.

A highly interesting conversation between one of Toledo's old soldiers and a friend of his, was overheard by a reporter the other day. The speaker was Mathias Blau, an old soldier and highly respected citizen of Toledo, living at 2207 Chestnut street. In answer to a question of his friend, Mr. Blau was explaining how he had saved money and gotten into a home of his own within the past year. He said that up to about a year ago he had been much of the time practically unable to work, as a result of a complication of diseases. Since that time he has been working regularly during the lumber seasons for Barbour & Starr, of lower town.

Growing more enthusiastic as he progressed Mr Blau explained that prior to the last year all the money he could get hold of was paid out for doctors, none of whom could give him any permanent benefit. For years he had tried to get a home of his own but just as he got a fund nicely started his old afflictions would come on again and he would spend his savings trying to get cured. In the meantime Mr. Blau's stomach disease, nervous affection, rheumatism and heart trouble were rapidly growing worse and life was getting to be a veritable burden. Among those who took money from the old soldier for so called medical treatment was a "traveling doctor," who knew very little about medicine, but was sharp enough to know that he could get more business away from home where he was not known.

Well, to make a long story short, just as Mr. Blau was giving up in dispair he learned of some remarkable cures being effected by the European Specialist who was treating chronic diseases by the latest scientific methods practiced by himself and others in the great European hospitals. The original copyrighted diet charts of what to eat and drink and the wonderful vegetable remedies used in connection with all the latest medical discoveries and inventions had done such wonderful things for a neighbor that Blau was finally persuaded by friends to treat with Dr. Kalkhoff, the European specialist on Summit street, between Oak and Orange. In speaking of the wonderful cure effected by the doctor in his case, Blau feelingly declared that he was a well man in a few months after beginning treatment, and that he had since saved his money and bought a home instead of paying doctor bills. It is impossible, he said, to prosper and save money when afflicted with poor health and big doctor bills.

John Schulz, Plaintiff,
vs.
George Foerch and others, Defendants.
In court of common pleas of Lucas county, Ohio.

George Foerch, whose place of residence is unknown, and Rosina Shulz, residing in the town of Grab, District Backnaug, in the Kingdom of Wurtemberg in Germany, and Frederick George Schulz, who resides in the town of Wohlhauem, Canton Luzern, in Switzerland, will take notice that on the 29th day of January, 1892, John Schulz filed his petition in the court of common pleas in and for Lucas county, Ohio, against them and Lizzie Beese, Chas. Beese and Henry Spielbusch, as executor, averring and charging therein that Catharine Foerch died at Toledo, Ohio, on January 11th, 1892, and that on the 16th day of January, 1892, a certain paper, dated August 5th, 1889, pretending to be the last will of said Catharine Foerch, deceased, was admitted to probate in the probate court of Lucas county, as her last will; that Henry Spielbusch was qualified as executor of said pretended will, but that said paper writing was not the last will of said deceased, and plaintiff prays that an issue be made up as to whether said paper is the last will of Catharine Foerch, deceased; that the same be set aside and for other relief. Said parties are required to answer on or before the third Saturday after 5th of March, A. D., 1892.

We state the truth—Deception may succeed, if under cover, and for a time, but it is the poorest kind of policy to make printed statements which will not stand the test of an investigation. A temporary customer secured by such means, is an injury rather than a benefit to your trade, and his opinion offsets any advantage he might have brought to the advertisers. Better not advertise at all than not live up to the spirit and letter of your advertisements. We have the confidence of the people, simply because we merit it; we have earned it by plain and straightforward dealing.
